Skybolt Roars To First Success, U.S. Still Plans To Drop Weapon

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP)—The controversial Skybolt air-launched missile registered its first success in six tests Saturday, but the White House and Pentagon said the flight would not alter U.S. plans to cancel the weapon.

Acting Secretary of Defense Roswell F. Gilpatric strongly indicated in Washington that this launching was the last for Skybolt. The Air Force has several missiles remaining which it hoped to fire in case the program was revived at a future date.

The successful test almost certainly will intensify the seething Skybolt issue in Great Britain where Prime Minister Harold Macmillan is being assailed from all political sides for his Nassau agreement with President Kennedy to accept U.S. Polaris submarine missiles in place of Skybolts.

British defense officials earlier had stated the nation's nuclear deterrence on Skybolt, abandoning several of their own missile projects.

The sleek Skybolt was launched Saturday from a B-52 Stratofortress bomber streaking more than seven miles above the Atlantic Ocean, about 15 miles south-east of Cape Canaveral. With almost fantastic accuracy, the rocket drilled its nose cone to a target 850 miles down range, landing just one mile off the center of the bullseye.

Accuracy was not a major goal of the missile—whose target was a broad section of sea—and an official called the near-miss of target center an "unexpected bonus." The Air Force originally scheduled the launching during the Kennedy-Macmillan talks this week, in hopes a success would have some bearing on the discussions. But sources reported the shot was delayed until the Western leaders parted "because of political reasons."

When the success was announced, jubilant project officials proclaimed it "a wonderful Christmas present" and said they hoped perhaps the Western leaders would change their minds about swapping Polaris for Skybolts. But within hours, word came from Palm Beach, Fla., where Kennedy is vacationing, that the Kennedy is vacationing, that the

Highway Death Toll Below Other Recent Christmas Periods

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Foul driving conditions confronted millions of American motorists heading for Christmas holiday destinations Saturday, but the early highway death toll trailed other recent yuletide periods.

A storm dumped up to a foot of snow on inland sections of the Middle Atlantic states and Central Appalachians and a blizzard and cold wave knifed into the Midwest. Freezing wet snow glazed highways in parts of the East.

Hazardous Driving In Illinois Areas

By The Associated Press

Scattered ice patches in parts of central Illinois and just south of Chicago meant driving dangers for some motorists during the four-day Christmas week-end.

Nineteen traffic fatalities, one fire death and two deaths due to carbon monoxide poisoning were reported in the state.

The State Division of Highways said ice patches existed on highways in an area roughly bounded by Bloomington on the north, Danville on the east, Jacksonville on the west and Carmi.

Similar conditions were reported in some areas south of Chicago.

The Associated Press count of holiday deaths began at 6 p.m. CST, Friday and will end midnight Tuesday.

A collision with a New York Central train at a Paris crossing Saturday killed three occupants of an automobile.

The victims were Linda L. Downing, 20, of Clinton, Ill., and a Paris couple, Robert David Anthony, about 21, and his wife, Ruth Ann, 19.

A three-car crash west of Zion took the lives of Mrs. Geneva King, 47, of Zion, and Russell Straley, 20, of Waukegan Friday night.

Donald Powell, 33, of Decatur was fatally injured in a collision Saturday on slick pavement near Clinton.

A Lake Oswego, Ore., man died after the auto he was in crashed into trees Saturday near Woodstock. The victim was William Worsham, about 19.

A $300 fire in a Chicago apartment resulted in the death Saturday of Mark Pearl, 2.

Amish Religious Convictions Reflected In School Program

KALONA, Iowa (AP)—Young voices heralding "Joy to the World" and "Silent Night" drifted from the weathered one-room schoolhouse.

Inside, 21 youngsters, children of old order Amish and other Mennonite families, were presenting their annual Christmas program before starting vacation.

The program presented by the Pleasant Hill School children outside Kalona Friday reflected the deep religious convictions of the Mennonites who have cherished through four centuries.

"He did not use a silvery box," recited 10-year-old Rachel Yoder, from a poem called "God's gift."

"Or paper green and red,"

"God laid his Christmas gift to men."

"Within a manger bed,"

Bearded fathers and conservatively dressed mothers, each wearing the traditional head cover, squeezed into the small school desks or sat on wooden benches to watch their children.

A red gingham curtain separating the stage from the audience.

The boys thrust their hands in their pockets as they recited. Bashful girls forgot their lines and needed prompting from their bearded Amish school teacher, Amos Yoder, 46.

The Amish live simple farm lives and shun the use of modern conveniences. The only reminders of Christmas in the plain school room were red and white streamers stretched from corner to corner, a picture of the star of Bethlehem on a wall and a stack of gaily wrapped gifts the children exchanged.

Eighth-grader Eldon Beachy's reading of "Christmas with Meaning" was a strong theme of the program.

"If you haven't been to Calvary,"

"How can you ever know

"The significance of Bethlehem

"And the babe in the manger

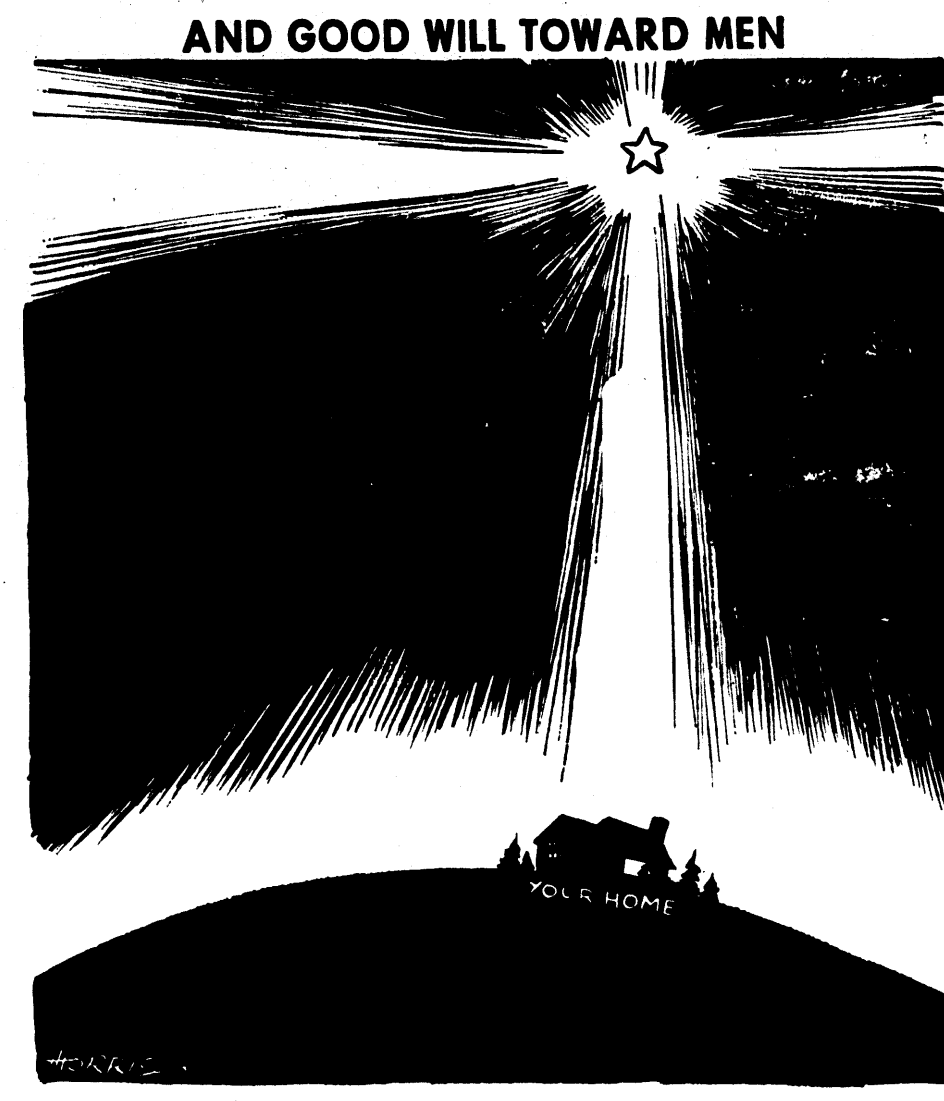

low?"

"How can you keep his birth-day?"

"How can you be a part "Of the deeper truth and mean-

It's Christmas Time

No Modern Neon-Lighted One—The Kind Enjoyed 200 Years Ago

WILLIAMSBURG, Va. (AP)—At Christmas time, do you like to hear carols pouring out of loudspeakers?

Or marvel at streets and houses dressed up with blue, green, red and yellow lights, some of them neon?

Or watch Santa Claus arrive by helicopter?

If you do, the place for you is not Williamsburg. This restored colonial capital manages to escape just about everything modern in its two weeks—that's right, two weeks—of Christmas every year.

Visitors who dearly love an old-fashioned Christmas are already taking part with the townspeople in the kind of celebration enjoyed here 200 years ago by such as George Washington, Thomas Jefferson and Patrick Henry.

As the Virginia Almanack of 1766 put it:

"Now Christmas comes, 'tis fit that we Should feast and sing, and merry be;

Keep open house, let fiddlers play.

A fit for cold, sing care away."

Some people at this season of the year have compared Williamsburg to a nostalgic Christmas card come to life. If it can be called that, it can also be called the most expensive Christmas card ever. Seventy-one million dollars from the late John D. Rockefeller Jr. has gone into creating an 18th century scene of simple beauty.

As Beverly M. Bowie wrote for the National Geographic: "Williamsburg is not merely old; it is beautiful. And it is not merely beautiful; its every brick is steeped in history."

In 1926 the first steps were taken toward restoration of Williamsburg.

De Gaulle plans to deliver his regular year-end radio-television address to the nation New Year's Eve. The first public indication of De Gaulle's attitude on the Polaris matter may come in his speech. So far there has been no formal government reaction.

Some French sources expect De Gaulle to give a provisional response to Kennedy and at the same time ask for elaboration.

Kennedy offered De Gaulle Polaris missiles, without warheads, with the hope France's nuclear strength would be integrated into a European force closely tied to the North Atlantic alliance. This was the same offer made to Macmillan and agreed to with the proviso that the missiles could be used independently, if "supreme national interests are at stake."

It was this loophole, particularly, that caught the eye of some French officials. De Gaulle is building his nuclear strike force and retaining control of it primarily to guard French interests in any East-West showdown. But he also considers it an important contribution to Western defense.

If De Gaulle is permitted to exercise some exclusively national control of his missiles, he may be interested in the American offer. But it is the general feeling in Paris that considerable trans-Atlantic discussion is ahead before final decisions are reached.

4 Planes To Bring Men To U.S.; Push Efforts To Load Ransom

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—Pan American World Air Lines said without attribution Saturday night that its planes will bring the Cuban invasion captives to Florida Monday, with the first load of 100 or more men scheduled to arrive at 7:30 a.m. EST.

A spokesman for the airline said it would fly cargo to Cuba starting Sunday at 5:30 a.m. and begin the prisoner freedom flights the next day.

Four Clipper planes, provided by the line, will bring the prisoners to Homestead Air Force Base south of Miami for processing and treatment if needed.

Meanwhile, efforts to get the invasion army's ransom off to Cuba went urgently forward in hopes of reuniting the 1,113 captives of Prime Minister Fidel Castro with their loved ones in Miami for Christmas.

The supplies aboard are a portion of the price for the freedom of 1,113 Bay of Pigs invasion prisoners.

PORT EVERGLADES, Fla. (AP)—The SS African Pilot, bearing an $11-million cargo of medicine and foodstuffs to ransom Cuban prisoners, departed for Havana Saturday night.

The ship was scheduled to leave about sundown but was delayed because of the inexperience of the crew, recruited hastily in Baltimore.

The supplies aboard are a portion of the price for the freedom of 1,113 Bay of Pigs invasion prisoners.

The work had the fervent blessing of prisoner relatives fighting to remain calm over impending reunion. It drew vigorous opposition from one man who was arrested after trying to throw a Cuba-bound medicine package into Port Everglades Harbor.

At Port Everglades, north of Miami, the 460-ton freighter African Pilot prepared to sail for Havana with $11 million in medicine and food as a first installment on $33 million in goods sorely needed in Cuba.

At Homestead AFB, facilities were readied to examine, feed, clothe and process the men.

In Havana, the prisoners captured in the abortive April 1961 Bay of Pigs invasion were reported ed "mad with joy" behind walls of prisons where Castro has kept them penned.

Members of the Prisoners' Families Committee in Havana said the captives were expected to be released Monday—Christmas Eve.

No moves toward celebration in advance were apparent among (Continued On Page Seven)

Zorin Removed From Job At U.N.

MOSCOW (AP)—Valerian A. Zorin, veteran hard-line Russian negotiator tripped up by the Kremlin's soft-line switch in the Cuban crisis, was removed Sunday as Soviet delegate to the United Nations.

Nikolai T. Fedorenko, now ambassador to Japan, was named his successor, Tass reported.

In announcing the change, Tass mentioned no new assignment for Zorin and left unclear whether Zorin's rank as a deputy foreign minister was affected. When a senior Soviet official loses his rank, this normally is made clear.

(Newsmen's inquiries at Soviet U.N. delegation headquarters in New York brought only expressions of surprise. Callers were told no official word of the change had been received.)

(Zorin was at the delegation's country house in Glen Cove on Long Island, U.N. acquaintances of Zorin suggested that health might be a factor in the change. They said Zorin, who is 60 years old, was tired and seemed somewhat unsure of himself at a news conference Saturday reviewing the U.N. General Assembly Session.)

Fedorenko, 50, is a Far Eastern affairs expert who also has served in the Soviet Embassy in Peking. The standing of Zorin apparently suffered because of the Cuban crisis. In the United Nations, he flatly denied U.S. charges in October that Soviet missile bases were being built in Cuba, only to have Premier Khrushchev admit their existence shortly afterward.

U.S. Chief Delegate Adlai E. Stevenson exhibited aerial photographs of the missile sites and then—in one of the most dramatic confrontations in the history of the U.N. Security Council—demanded to know if Zorin denied the existence of the sites.

Zorin replied, "I am not in an American courtroom. In due course, sir, you will have your reply." To this Stevenson retorted, "I am prepared to wait for my answer until hell freezes over."

Zorin eventually denied existence of the sites.

Shuffles in the high ranks of the Soviet Foreign Office often have been followed by a change of policy.

Zorin, regarded by Western diplomats as a hard-line negotiator, in particular has expressed the Kremlin's rigid stand against international inspection as a part of disarmament.

If the change heralds any new Soviet approach, it may become known after the disarmament talks reopen Jan. 15 in Geneva.

East European sources have hinted recently that new Soviet proposals would be offered at Geneva about Feb. 1. They did not (Continued On Page Seven)

Macmillan Faces Fight Over Polaris

LONDON (AP)—Prime Minister Macmillan comes back from the Caribbean sunshine Sunday to face the fight of his life before a nation disturbed and divided about his nuclear new deal with President Kennedy.

Macmillan's decision to switch Britain's H-bombs from its air force to submarines and to link this deterrent with the North Atlantic Treaty Organization brought criticism from every side.

Among the toughest critics were newspapers which normally support the Conservative government. They saw the Macmillan-Kennedy agreement as the end of Britain's special independence and of its special position as first of the equals among America's allies.

Red Cross Praises Response To Call For Drugs For Cuba

WASHINGTON (AP)—The story of the gathering of supplies for the Cuban prisoner exchange was what the American Red Cross called Saturday the "magnificent" response of American industry and organized labor to a request for help.

More than 100 manufacturers contributed or pledged food and drugs. Eleven airlines, 20 trucking companies and 20 railroads pitched in to get the supplies to Florida, contributing their services, too.

In addition, the steamship lines committee loaned freighters.

A Red Cross spokesman said Saturday everything was contributed, that no government funds and no government supplies were used and there were no money contributions from suppliers or individuals.

The Red Cross said that it was advised on Dec. 5 that discussions with the Cuban government again were taking place and entered into the project to get the supplies.

The Red Cross said it did so at the request of the Cuban Families' Committee when it became apparent that the necessary supplies and transportation would have to be secured quickly if negotiations on the prisoners were to succeed.

Requests for contributions of drugs, medical supplies and food were made by the Red Cross to individual firms, trade associations and drug manufacturers' associations.

For the supply operation, the Air Transport Association, the American Trucking Association, the Association of American Railroads and the Committee of American Steamship Lines worked with the Red Cross.

The AFL-CIO arranged for volunteer seamen, mostly marine cooks to man the ship's galley on the return from Cuba, to go to Miami to stand by for possible service.

The following is a partial list of firms that donated supplies: Pharmaceuticals, drugs and medicines: Amour Pharmaceutical Co., Kankakee, Ill.; Abbott Laboratories, Chicago; J.D. Seale & Co., Decatur; Baxter Laboratory, Morton Grove, Ill.; Ames, Co., Inc., Elkhart, Ind., and Miles Laboratory, Elkhart, Ind.

Hoffa Jury Hopelessly Deadlocked

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP)—A U.S. District Court jury trying Teamsters Union President James R. Hoffa, sent back for further deliberations after reporting itself deadlocked, reported Saturday night it still was unable to reach a verdict in the $1-million conspiracy case.

After obeying U.S. Dist. Judge William E. Miller's order to "stick with" the case a while longer, the jury sent out a note that the jurors had changed and it still was "hopelessly deadlocked."

Government attorneys, who had for nine weeks, built up their case against Hoffa on charges of violating the Taft-Hartley Act, asked the judge to give the jury supplemental instructions and direct it to deliberate into the night.

Defense attorney Jacob Kossman asked that the jury be discharged. Noting that the jurors had reported themselves hopelessly deadlocked twice, Kossman said it would be "tantamount to coercion" to send them back again.

The second deadlocked note came three hours after the first one.

"We are hopelessly deadlocked and ready to report same," said a note sent out by jury foreman Walter Harper after the six men and six women had deliberated eight hours.

The head of the nation's largest single union sat in stony silence as Judge Miller read the note and instructed the jurors to (Continued On Page Seven)

Christmas decorations go up in London's Oxford Street.

Factory employees assemble Christmas decorations for London's famous Regent Street.

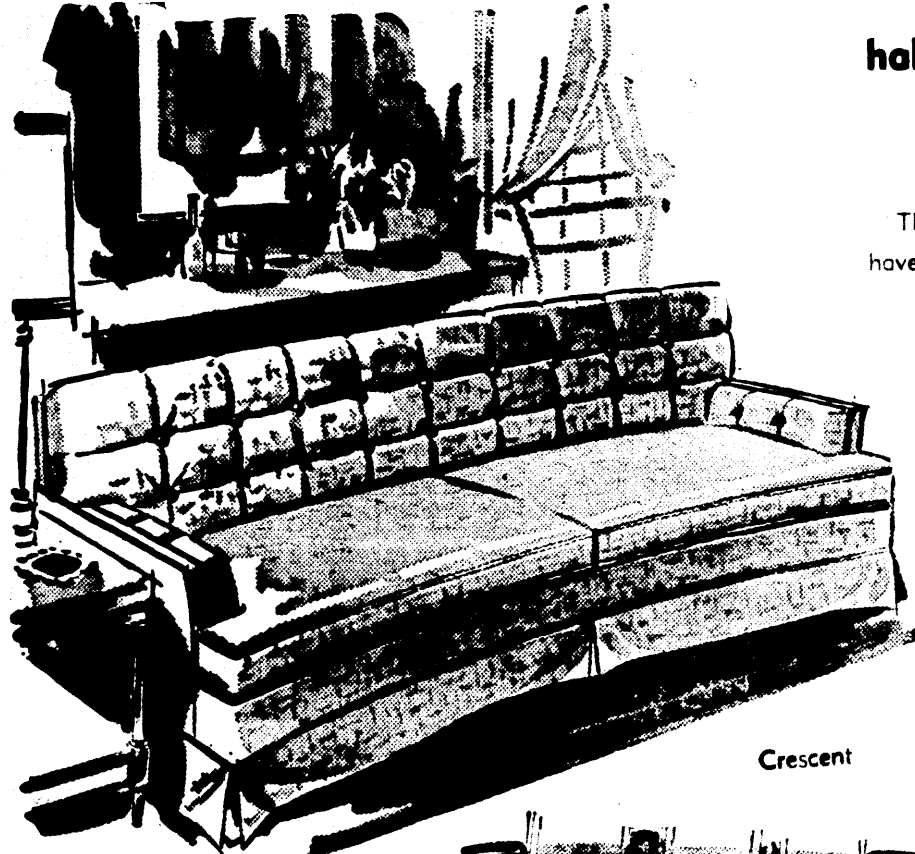

Streets and shop windows in London, England, ablaze with brilliant lighting and bright Christmas decorations, look very much as they do in cities and towns

SPRECHTEN SIE DEUTSCH?

ATHENS, Ohio (AP) — A group of Ohio University students has been granted a charter by the state of Ohio for a unique corporation.

They are establishing an Ohio University German Language House, where German must be spoken in all areas except private rooms.

Officials say it is the first non-university, nonfraternity housing unit ever to operate within the confines of Ohio University.

Only three of the 14 men involved speak German fluently, but all are taking courses.

As I See It

by E. W. BROWN

"God bless us, every one!" cried Tiny Tim; and we, in the midst of this heart-warming Christmas season, echo his wish. We hope that this will be the finest Christmas you have ever had. There is something about this time of year that draws us all closer together and makes us realize more than ever our dependence on each other. We are reminded, too, of those teachings which were presented by the Christ whose birthday we celebrate. There are some among us who feel that too much emphasis is given to outward show . . . to tinsel, lights, food, ornaments and various trappings. But all these things bring gaiety and happiness . . . and surely the time of the renewal of our faith should be a happy time as well as a time of serious thought.

Along with the glitter and flash of the Yuletide season there is a re-discovery of the fact that there is greater happiness in giving than in receiving, and that the principles of Christ furnish a practical plan for everyday living. Perhaps the time may come when all men discover these truths for all time, and not just for a brief season . . . and we shall truly have peace on earth and good will toward men. A Merry Christmas to you! E. W. BROWN, 406 S. Main. Phone 245-4333.

COLOR FILM ON NATIVITY TONIGHT AT FAITH LUTHERAN

"The First Noel," an animated color film will be one of the highlights of the Candlelight Christmas Eve service to be held at Faith Lutheran church Sunday night.

The service will begin at 7:30 with the Candlelight Procession of the junior and senior choirs. Miss Connie Driver, a Jacksonville high school senior, will provide the organ accompaniment for the service, special music by both choirs, and familiar carols by the congregation.

The movie, "The First Noel," brings a fresh approach to the familiar Biblical story of the Nativity. Depicted in beautiful contemporary art, 65 original paintings are blended in a unique manner to visualize the events of the first Christmas.

Through a special film technique, the paintings "come alive" in an illusion of flowing rhythmic motion. An original musical score and a reading from the New English translation of the New Testament are tied in with the paintings to produce an unusual effect. Members and friends of the congregation are welcome.

Interpreting The News

A European scramble for Polaris weapons is in the offing. It was inherent in Franco-American relations that if they were given to Britain they would have to be offered to France. And the equally sensitive Britains now will fear the end of their special relationship with the United States in nuclear as well as in other fields.

Italy already is building surface ships designed to launch the Polaris missile, which originally was designed for undersea launching and has been offered to the North Atlantic Treaty Organization in that guise as a multilateral European deterrent.

Polaris will give France the nuclear standing she seeks much more quickly than she can develop on her own, and you can expect to start hearing from Germany at any moment.

The question arises, despite the hopes expressed in the Kennedy-Macmillan communiqué at Nassau, as to whether any of the countries will be interested in contributing to a NATO force once they have their own national forces. And the United States appears to face defeat in her efforts to hold down membership in the atom club.

Europeans always have professed scorn of what they call American money chasing. But now, with a taste of prosperity, they are really diving for it themselves. It shows in the growing protectionist manifestations of the Common Market. It also shows on the military map.

Expanding economies get all the attention, while they depend upon the United States for their major defense. Germany is declining to increase her army and stand as fully as possible in the front line of her own conventional defense, as American troops are standing.

France declines to turn promised troops over to NATO while spending heavily on nuclear development primarily for political purposes.

Britain years ago took the line that nuclear defense was sufficient, and has threatened several times to pull a good portion of

Christmas Shadowed By Tragedy At Mine

By W. A. SWARTWORTH
CARMICHAELS, Pa. (AP)—

Life in the depressed coal fields of southwestern Pennsylvania is seldom easy. But the people have a way of making the best of it.

So it is this Christmas season, even in the aftermath of disaster.

Two weeks ago a tremendous explosion killed 37 men deep inside the nearby Robena No. 3 mine of U.S. Steel Corp. Thirty-four women lost husbands; 65 children under age 19 lost fathers.

A shock wave of dread and gloom engulfed this soft coal region, spreading to the 17 different towns where the miners lived—places like Carmichaels, Ronco, Masontown, Uledi, Adah, Clarksburg.

Four of the victims came from Carmichaels (pop. 780), closest community to the shattered mine, which derives its very existence from coal mining.

Recalling the Dec. 9 tragedy, Albert M. Hathaway, secretary of Carmichaels Borough Council, says: "The whole town was upset. There was so much concern, so much sympathy for the families involved."

There is sadness still in Carmichaels, some bitterness — and even a touch of despair. But the qualities that come through strongest are courage and determination.

"This hasn't killed Christmas for the townspeople," observes Rev. Russell C. Owens, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church. "Certainly there is some dampening of the holiday spirit. They're sad—but they're trying to carry on as usual."

Highlighting the evening was the opening of the many lovely Christmas gifts distributed from a lighted Christmas tree. Secret pals of the past year were revealed and new names were drawn for the coming year.

Bingo was played for recreation, and prizes given winners. Christmas music was played throughout the evening.

Names of the hostesses for the coming months of the new year were drawn and are as follows: January, Bea Taylor and Mildred Wilkinson; February, Elizabeth Ballard and Marilyn Ford; March, Minnie Steelman and Phyllis Dawdy; April, Nona Odom and Cora Aulgar; May, Mary Lou Burton and Hazel Strowmatt; June, Grace Brown and Margaret Hicks; July (family picnic) Mary Nagle; August, Mildred Bruce and Leona Dawdy; September, Mildred Dawdy and Hazel Smith; October, Laura Dawdy and Bertha Nicholson; November, Iva Prindle and Charles Dawdy; and December, Lida Dawdy and Juanita Rollins.

The January meeting will be held on the 17th of the month, at which time the newly elected and appointed officers will be installed.

Not wanting to be outdone by the Rotary club's fine showing on Thursday, the Kiwanis club put forth their best Friday and came through with a high for their club and also a new high for clubs reporting so far this year by turning in a total of $519.33.

This, added to $157.39 which The Salvation Army Advisory Board members collected during the evening hours, made a total for the day of $676.72.

Those contributing $10 or more Friday included employees of New Method Book Bindery in memory of Mame Whitten, Theodore and John Zimmer, James Dvorak and Elizabeth Scupham, Gustine Furniture Co., Illinois Road Contractors Inc., Jenkinson Grocery Co. employees, Illinois faculty and administration, Jenkinson Grocery Co., Arthur French, H. One of those widowed is Mrs. Deiliah Tokish, 36, whose husband, Joseph 43, had worked in the mines for 22 years. Mrs. Tokish has three children—a boy 12, girls 3 and 12.

"At first I wasn't going to have anything for Christmas," Mrs. Tokish relates. "But the more I thought about it, the more I came to realize that Joe wouldn't want it that way. He adored the kids; he would want the best for them. So we're going to have the finest Christmas we can."

Patterson RNA Closes 1962; Plans New Year

PATTERSON — The annual Christmas party for the local Camp of Royal Neighbors was held Thursday evening, Dec. 20 at the Patterson Grade School. Twenty-one members, and the following guests, Mrs. Lela Hubbard, Miss Ella Black, Mrs. Beulah Israel, of the school personnel; Juveniles, Judy Smith, Debbie Burton, and Diane Burton and Bill Burton and Mike Dawdy, were present for the supper.

The room and tables were attractive with decorations in keeping with the holiday season. Mrs. Nona Odom offered the grace, preceding the beautiful meal, of baked turkey and dressing, prepared by the hostesses, Leona Dawdy and Mary Lou Burton. Numerous potluck dishes were brought by members.

WISCONSIN VICTIM OF UCLA BY 77-63

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — A resourceful UCLA team closed out a successful three-game Midwest basketball invasion Saturday with a 77-63 victory over Wisconsin.

The Bruins beat the Wisconsin zone in the first half to take a 34-26 lead and bested the Badgers in a battle of fast breaks in the second period to increase their margin.

The victory gave UCLA a sweep of games with Butler, Northwestern and Wisconsin and a 7-2 season record. Wisconsin is 4-3.

Gain Goodrich, Fred Slaughter and Keith Erickson combined to lead UCLA scoring with 13 points apiece while Jack Bruns had the same total for the Badgers.

Early Badger Lead
Wisconsin started fast and took a 6-0 lead as the Bruins missed long shots over the Badgers' zone defense. Wisconsin built an 18-10 lead but UCLA started to connect and a layup by Walt Hazzard with 7:58 left put the Bruins ahead for the first time.

Wisconsin abandoned its zone for a full court man-to-man defense at the start of the second half but the West Coast team turned on the speed and ran with the Badgers to take a 15-point lead with 16 minutes remaining.

The Badgers battled to within six points midway in the period but fell apart under relentless pressure. UCLA shot only slightly better than the losers from the field with a 41.3 average compared with Wisconsin's 40.3.

North Pole — Egads, Merry Christmas, it arrived! The bewhiskered old gent finally cut loose with his Yuletide list for loyal, patriotic believers.

The right plump jolly old elf apologized for keeping all on pins and needles but the rush had been so great this season, he had almost slipped up. Mr. Claus reported that biggest items on the December 25 lists ranged from hand-tailored form-fitted gloves for bowlers to lavender colored covers for pool tables, not overlooking the usual run of athletic devices for the kiddies.

Ending, he wished all well for the forthcoming seasons and bade a Cool Yule and Frantic First to everyone.

Go on with his list: "Robert Kraushaar, Jacksonville high school, football coach, an 8-1 season; Howard Curtis, local city golfer, 1962 city championship; Waverly high school, membership to the PMSC; 'Titanic' Tom Farrell, an Army assignment near 18 holes of fairways and greens; Joseph Brooks, Illinois College football coach, that 6-2 season; R. F. 'Bud' Mau, Ashland, a speedy recovery from his nasty spill recently; 'Honky' Robinson, Florence, many more days of health on the banks of the Illinois; Walbert Kennedy, federal game warden, his permanent papers as protector of fowl and beasts hereabouts; Charles 'Scoop' Bellatti, Ath-publicity director, University of Illinois, advance ticket sales in the several thousand $ for 1963 Illini football." "Bill Gross, Jacksonville referee, a new whistle; Dennis Sergeant, JHS sophomore basketball whiz, his own door key to the bowl so he can practice longer; Jim Aggett, Ashland high pitching artist, a better curve-ball this spring; Charles Runkle, state police detective, congratulations on his new appointment; Dave Bone, ex-Northwestern U. cager, A+ grades in pre-medicine; John Chapman, Crimson basketball professor, a starting five; Donald Kemp, Tropia high athletic chief, his two hardwired wins over Bluffs high; Jim Bonds, ISD, a gridiron crown tie in the PMSC and continued conference membership; Conrad Donald III, IC football totter, two free lessons in self-defense from Donald Byus; Jacksonville bowlers, bigger and better scores; Dr. and Mrs. Ernest G. Hildner Sr., continued long life and happiness; Wally Baptist Sound and B.E.S. Co., a smashing return to the Peterson Bowling classic; Arthur Yates of ISD, success with the forthcoming Jacksonville Booster club; the Downtown Quarterback's club, bigger and better cups of Drexel coffee and to sports fans everywhere, may their lives be filled with extra points and free throws."

Cincy's Defense Sinks Davidson

CINCINNATI (AP) — Cincinnati's No. 1 ranked basketball Bears put on a second half defensive squeeze and a display of offensive sharpshooters Saturday night that sank ambitious Davidson 72-46.

Sluggish Cincinnati shooting helped produce a see-saw first half in which the lead changed six times in 4 minutes.

It was the 26th straight victory over two years for Cincinnati and 64th in a long row of home court games.

Davidson, surprise conquerors of No. 2-ranked Duke earlier this week, led off with a high-pressure defense that combined with erratic Cincinnati shooting to keep the issue tight at first.

The Bears took back the lead for the last time at 21-20 on a field goal by Ron Bonham, and staged a flurry that set an 8-point halftime edge.

The second half speedup hoisted Cincinnati to their highest lead 63-39.

It was the eighth victory of the season for Cincinnati. Davidson is now 5-2.

EAGLES SIGN SECOND CHOICE
PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The Philadelphia Eagles have signed Ray Mansfield, 245-pound University of Washington tackle, the team's second pick in the National Football League player draft.

General Manager Vince McNally announced last Saturday the signing of Ralph Heck, 225-pound Colorado linebacker, 11th pick; Rudy Matthews, 240-pound TCU tackle 18th pick, and Del Wiley, 265-pound Texas Tech tackle, a free agent.

Mansfield was the fifth choice of Denver of the American Football League.

Dolf Schayes of Syracuse is in his 15th season in the National Basketball Association.

Griffin Wins Jerseyville Play 75-58

Panthers Gain Third Place

JERSEYVILLE — Griffin took an early first period lead and went on to take the Jerseyville Holiday tournament here Saturday with a 75-58 victory over Hillsboro.

The Cyclones got three figure scoring help from John Davacko, Mike Weber and Rich Hayes. Davacko came through with 13 of his night's 19 in the third period while Weber added eight in the second and five in the fourth quarter to keep the attack in shape.

Griffin posted wins over Gillespie, 67-44, and Marquette in the second game, 72-40, before meeting Hillsboro.

Consolation game honors went to host school Jerseyville as the Panthers swept to a 70-63 win over Gillespie on the strength of double figure scoring from Bob Smith, Tom Prough and Jim Trask.

High for the game was Alan Rolando, who stashed away 23 for the evening.

The Panthers enjoyed a 17-10 first period edge and were never threatened until the final frame when Gillespie came within five.

In the afternoon's games, Jerseyville and Gillespie scored wins from Bethalto and Roxana to give them each a berth in the third and fourth place bracket.

Jerseyville caught a sagging Bethalto five in the second period, and made up an 18-14 deficit, while Bethalto could only hit six points, to take an easy 63-47 victory.

Tom Prough contributed eight of the 12 in the second quarter and Loren Wallace hit nine of his afternoon's 13 in the second half, to keep the Panther attack moving.

Prough came through with six and Wallace with four in the 20-point fourth period.

Gillespie got double figure help from four regulars as they dumped Roxana 68-48 to gain a berth against the Panthers in the first game.

Harry Fanning hit six in the first and six in the second while Alan Rolando canned seven in the second to head up the Gillespie strength.

WOMEN'S PGA TOUR
CHATTANOOGA, Tenn. (AP) — One of the biggest tournaments on the Ladies Professional Golf Association tour, the $10,000 Rock City Ladies Open, will be inaugurated at the new Valleybrook Golf and Country Club here next June 6-9, it was announced Saturday.

Nearly 11 of the 52 women pros who play the tournament circuit are expected to compete in the 54-hole medal play event over the 6,700 yard nearby Hixson layout, which opened in August.

Eastern Kentucky State College fielded its first football team in 1922. The only perfect season the Maroons came in 1940 when they won all eight games.

Pensive Student

THINKING AHEAD: Quarterback Y. A. Tittle, of the New York Giants, concentrates on his lessons during skull session at New York's Yankee Stadium. Tittle, who set a league record of 33 touchdown passes this season, is the big gun in the Giants attack. The Giants meet the Green Bay Packers Dec. 30th for the National League Football title and this may occupy some of Tittle's thoughts.

Rebels Nap 15-14 Win From Yanks In Final Seconds

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Big Willie Richardson broke the South's color line in the North-South college all-star football game Saturday and carried the Rebels to a 15-14 victory when he scored on an 80-yard pass play with 37 seconds to go.

Randy Kerbow of Rice threw the pass. Then Jerry Woolum of Kentucky whipped another to his teammate, Jerry Gush, for the two-point conversion that proved the actual margin of victory.

Little All-America
Richardson, Little All-America choice from Jackson, Miss. State College, ended his college career with a dazzling pass-catching performance that won him honors as the South's most valuable player.

Bob Paramore, another Little All-America from Florida A&M Negro college, who was chosen along with Richardson, made it a greater day for his race by winning the Sportsmanship Award for a fine running performance on a bad ankle.

The desperate, game-winning pass caught the Yankees, who were favored by seven points, by surprise. The lanky, long-striding Richardson caught it at the 40 and ambled untouched across the goal.

Little Jerry Gross of Detroit had pitched the North into a 14-7 halftime lead.

The Detroit 168-pounder passed 7 yards to Lonny Sanders of Michigan State for the first touchdown in the opening quarter.

The South struck back quickly to tie it up 7-7 on a 48-yard throw to Richardson.

In the second quarter Gross hit Walter Sweeney of Syracuse and Tom Hennessey of Holy Cross with three passes and from the 10 yard line of Ohio State.

smashed over in two plays, 7-0 and 14-0.

BUTLER SNAPS IRISH WIN STREAK AT SIX

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — A Butler University basketball team that had lost six of seven games rose up and toppled previously unbeaten Notre Dame Saturday night 66-59. The Irish had won six straight.

The Bulldogs used only six men in the game and two, Tom Bowman and Jeff Blue, scored all but 20 of their points. Bowman and Blue each had 23.

Sophomore Larry Sheffield was high scorer for the Irish with 15 points.

The teams were tied 27-27 at the half. Notre Dame in the second half gradually wilted against the Bulldogs' hot shooting and rebounding.

PALMER IN LA OPEN
LOS ANGELES (AP) — Golfer Arnold Palmer, the dominant figure in the game today, will try for one plum that has eluded him in seven tries.

Palmer notified officials he will compete in the $55,000 Los Angeles Open Jan. 3-7.

Winner of eight tournaments this year, including the Masters and the British Open, Palmer has never been even close to the top money in the Los Angeles fixture.

Buckeyes Blast Detroit 101-66

DETROIT (AP) — Ohio State, the nation's third ranked basketball power, drove to its sixth straight victory over a sophomore-studded Detroit team 101-66 Saturday night in its first road test of the season.

Ohio State, winning its first game on the road, jumped to an early lead and coasted in after leading 51-37 at halftime.

More than 6,700 fans witnessed the slaughter as Detroit's Titans, loaded with sophomores, gave the ball away on miscues no less than 16 times in the first half.

Ohio State piled up a 28-15 lead after ten minutes of play as Dick Reasbeck scored 16 of his 28 points.

The Buckeyes built the lead to 80-46 midway of the second half as Reasbeck and Gary Bradd were removed from the game by Coach Fred Taylor who substituted freely throughout the final half.

Bradd finished with 19 points. Dick Dzick led the Titans with 15.

MISSOURI TOPPLES GEORGIA TECH 14-10

HOUSTON (AP) — Bill Tobin, taking advantage of a key block by Andy Russell, broke loose for a 77-yard touchdown run in the third quarter Saturday to break up a defensive deadlock and give Missouri a 14-10 victory over favored Georgia Tech in the fourth annual Bluebonnet Bowl football classic.

Russell, with two interceptions, then paced the powerful Missouri defense—the fifth best in the nation—as it protected the 14-7 lead by turning back three late Tech threats by giving up nothing more than a 26-yard field goal by Billy Lofthridge.

A fumble recovery at the Missouri 15 paved the way for Lofthridge's three-point late in the third period and two interceptions gave the Engineers late chances at the Tiger 23- and 22-yard lines before Russell made his game-saving pass thefts.

Missouri, a touchdown underdog, never trailed in a game witnessed by a crowd of 55,000 and a national television audience.

CARTER STOPS MIMS WITH 4TH ROUND KO

NEW YORK (AP) — Ruben (Hurricane) Carter stormed back from a fourth round knockdown to take a unanimous decision from veteran Holly Mims of Washington, D.C., in a nationally televised 10 round bout at Madison Square Garden Saturday night.

Carter, from Paterson, N. J., weighed 155½. Mims, a last-minute substitute for Gomeo Brennan of Bimini, BWI, scaled 160½.

NO TITAN SALE SATURDAY
HOUSTON (AP) — The executive committee of the American Football League held a special meeting Saturday but did not announce any action on the proposed sale of the New York Titans.

The committee was expected to discuss the Titan situation but delay any action until next month's annual meeting at San Diego.

Foss and other league officials have spent considerable time in New York the past month ironing out financial problems of the New York franchise and participating in negotiations for a possible sale.

Downey Nabs Sooner Pass For Clincher

Down By Nine Before Rallying

CHAMPAIGN, Ill. (AP) — Undeclared Illinois rang up its fifth successive basketball triumph Saturday, outlasting Oklahoma in a thrilling finish 93-90 after the Illini trailed seven times by 9 points.

With Illinois, No. 8 in the Associated Press national poll, leading only 91-90 with 13 seconds left, Oklahoma called time but failed in a last second bid of strategy.

Oklahoma's Farrell Johnson tossed the ball in bounds, but Illinois' Dave Downey intercepted and drove half the length of the court for the clinching basket.

Just as the buzzer sounded, Oklahoma's Jerry Haddock pushed in a rebound but it was ruled the game already had ended.

Although Oklahoma, now 4-4, was well ahead in the mid-stages of the game, Illinois spurred to an 85-76 margin with 2:34 to go, mainly on the scoring of Bill Small.

Small tallied 26 points, all coming on his 13 field goals with 20 points coming in the second half. Downey was Illini runnerup with 21.

Sooners Later Than Never
Early in the game Illinois was ahead by as much as seven points, 29-22, but the Sooners zoomed back to score 18 of the next 20 points counted for a 40-31 margin.

Oklahoma also led by 9 points six other times, the last at 57-48 five minutes after halftime.

Small and Bob Starnes, who hit on 13 of 15 free throws, then carried Illinois to a 63-61 edge, accounting for 15 points between them in a four-minute stretch.

Oklahoma led briefly at 65-63, but then Downey got into the act and Illinois soon was ahead 76-67 with 7:37 to go. Oklahoma didn't threaten again until the final minutes. Then Haddock, who led the Sooners with 22 points, cut the Illini lead to 80-86.

With 44 seconds left, Johnson's basket put Oklahoma behind only 89-88. Illinois made it 91-88 on Starnes' two free throws, but Harvey Catlin's basket made it 91-90 with less than a minute left.

Ohio State piled up a 28-15 lead after ten minutes of play as Dick Reasbeck scored 16 of his 28 points.

The Buckeyes built the lead to 80-46 midway of the second half as Reasbeck and Gary Bradd were removed from the game by Coach Fred Taylor who substituted freely throughout the final half.

Bradd finished with 19 points. Dick Dzick led the Titans with 15.

Hoffa Jury Hopelessly Deadlocked

The jury later asked to see Hoffa's tax records and dividend checks and asked for the judge's instructions to the jury and an interpretation of the portion of Taft-Hartley Act which applies to Hoffa's case.

Hoffa was charged with violating the Taft-Hartley law's ban against union officials' taking money from a company while representing its employees. The government claimed Hoffa accepted payoffs from a Michigan trucking company as a bribe for labor peace.

The Teamsters president was charged on two counts, each a misdemeanor punishable by a year in prison and a $10,000 fine.

Farmers Union Urges Support Of Wheat Program

RAPID CITY, S.D. (AP) — Grover approval of the 1964 wheat program in next spring's referendum is essential to insure stability of income for both agriculture and business.

"A no vote would bring sharply reduced rural buying power and further depress farm family living and the entire economy," said Leonard Kenfield, chairman of a Farmers Union subcommittee which met Saturday in Rapid City to discuss the vote.

Kenfield, president of the Montana Farmers Union, from Great Falls, said failure of approval could bring wide open planting of wheat which would result "in such a hopeless glutting of the market as to demoralize domestic prices and bring chaos to the world market."

CHICAGO (AP) — The market for butcher hogs firmed somewhat late last week as offerings slackened and prices were as much as 50 cents a hundredweight higher at the close.

The week's top of 38.50 head was down 3.50 from the previous week and was the smallest in almost two months. Higher prices for pork at wholesale outlets also contributed to the firmness.

Buyers noted that pork loins sold up to $6 a hundredweight higher, the sharpest advance in several months.

At other livestock markets, though, offerings of butcher hogs were a little more liberal than last week.

Slaughter steers extended their downward trend through the fourth consecutive week and closed 25 to 75 cents lower. The top of $31.50, paid on Monday for most of prime grade, was the lowest weekly peak since the middle of August.

Buyers said further weakness of wholesale beef prices was a brake on the market along with the reduced slaughter next week because of the holiday.

Sharply reduced offerings of slaughter lambs firmed the market for choice and prime wooled grades and these sold up to 50 cents higher while other grades ranged from steady to weak. The 12-market supply was down 20 per cent.

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market last week went through a typical late December process with year-end tax transactions muddying the trend and crosscurrents prevailing.

The popular stock market averages varied in their final reading so the trend could best be described as mixed.

The Dow Jones industrial average took a minor loss of 1.88 at 646.41.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks showed a small pickup of 6 at 241.2.

Meanwhile, volume remained at the relatively low level of 18,900,752 shares, compared with 18,344,700 the previous week.

Strong leadership by such "big stocks" as General Motors and Standard Oil (New Jersey), however, reflected high quality investment demand which was based on some solid business realities.

GM topped its old historic high of 58 1/2, reached in 1959, and established a new peak of 59 1/2 Thursday. Production and sales this year have been second only to record 1955 in the auto industry, and auto shares have been doing well. As the past week began, GM board Chairman Frederick C. Donner predicted that 1963 would bring seven million car sales, about the same as this year.

GM was the most active stock, keeping a net gain of 1 1/2 but cutting its best price to close at 58 1/2.

Jersey Standard, biggest factor in the oil business, benefited from a statement by its President, M. J. Rathbone, that the company's earnings this year will top the record $809 million of 1956. Jersey standard stock showed an advance of 1 1/2 at 59 1/2, placed fifth in volume for the week.

Beneath this impressive leadership, however, the market was a hotbed of tax-loss selling and switching. Many big stocks were traded as major shifts were made in investment portfolios. Based on the 1,475 issues traded, it would seem like a losing week, for 772 declined and 546 advanced.

D. REES, FORMER DECATUR RESIDENT, KILLED IN SEATTLE

SEATTLE (AP)—Donald L. Rees, 45, formerly of Decatur, Ill., was killed Friday when the station wagon he was driving and a truck collided in a reversible traffic lane east of Seattle.

The state patrol said Rees was driving toward Seattle in a lane which is used for outward-bound traffic during evening rush hours. His vehicle collided with a one-ton truck.

Rees, a house painter, moved to Seattle from Decatur five years ago. He was the father of six.

Other survivors include his widow, Dorothy; his father and step-mother, Mr. and Mrs. Alva M. Rees of Decatur and a brother, Robert D. Rees of Omaha, Neb.

LOAMI BARN BURNS SATURDAY EVENING

LOAMI — A barn on the Os-car Evans farm, one mile west of Loami, burned to the ground Saturday evening and endangered a second barn nearby as fire departments from Loami and New Berlin stayed with the blaze to fight the possibilities of its spreading.

The fire broke out sometime around 8 p.m. and both departments were called. The barn was filled with bales of hay and they were tightly packed hindering the stoppage of the fire.

Skybolt Roars To First Success

Bahamas agreement "gives the best possible defense for the West — not only for the 60s but the 70s."

Gilpatrick drove another nail in Skybolt's coffin late in the day when he said there would be no change in the decision of the Pentagon to halt the program.

"The Skybolt flight test that took place this morning, the only successful test out of the six conducted to date, had been scheduled for sometime prior to the understanding reached yesterday at Nassau by President Kennedy and Prime Minister Macmillan."

"Today's single test did not conclusively demonstrate the capability of the missile to achieve the target accuracy for which the Skybolt system was designed. This flight test was one of an extensive series planned for the research phase of the project."

"It is always expected that some tests of this sort should succeed and that others will fail. Many additional tests had been planned and would be required during the research phase to prove out and perfect this complex weapons system."

"Program decisions cannot be based simply upon the success or failure of early tests. Doubts as to the prospects of success of the Skybolt system in its entirety and reliability when operational were among the factors responsible for the recommendation of the secretary of defense against further funding the program. The results of today's test have not caused any change in that position."

Kennedy decided to scrap the Skybolt because of rising costs expected to reach $2.5 billion, delays caused by five test failures and questionable performance.

Week's Grains Finish With Small Losses

By GIL MAYO

AP Business News Writer

CHICAGO (AP) — Influences were rather mixed in the grain futures market this week but most commodities finished with small net losses on the Board of Trade.

Oats and rye were in fairly good demand most of the time, principally by speculators, and both posted substantial gains for some deliveries.

Three reports by the government hit the market with varying degrees of surprise, some with moderate bullish and bearish consequences. Of most significance, perhaps, was the final estimate of the year on crop production.

It showed surprisingly higher figures for corn and soybeans but it also showed a revision of the 1961 soybean yield. As finally appraised, the 1962 corn crop was slightly larger than a year earlier with the latest estimate up more than 53 million bushels from a month earlier.

Brokers had thought both the corn and soybean production would be at least slightly less than predicted in the November report. Both commodities came under moderate pressure.

Another report, the first for the 1963 winter wheat crop, showed a planted acreage well above that harvested last summer with prospects that the yield would exceed a billion bushels. If realized, that would be almost 200 million bushels larger than this year and increase the surplus by about that amount.

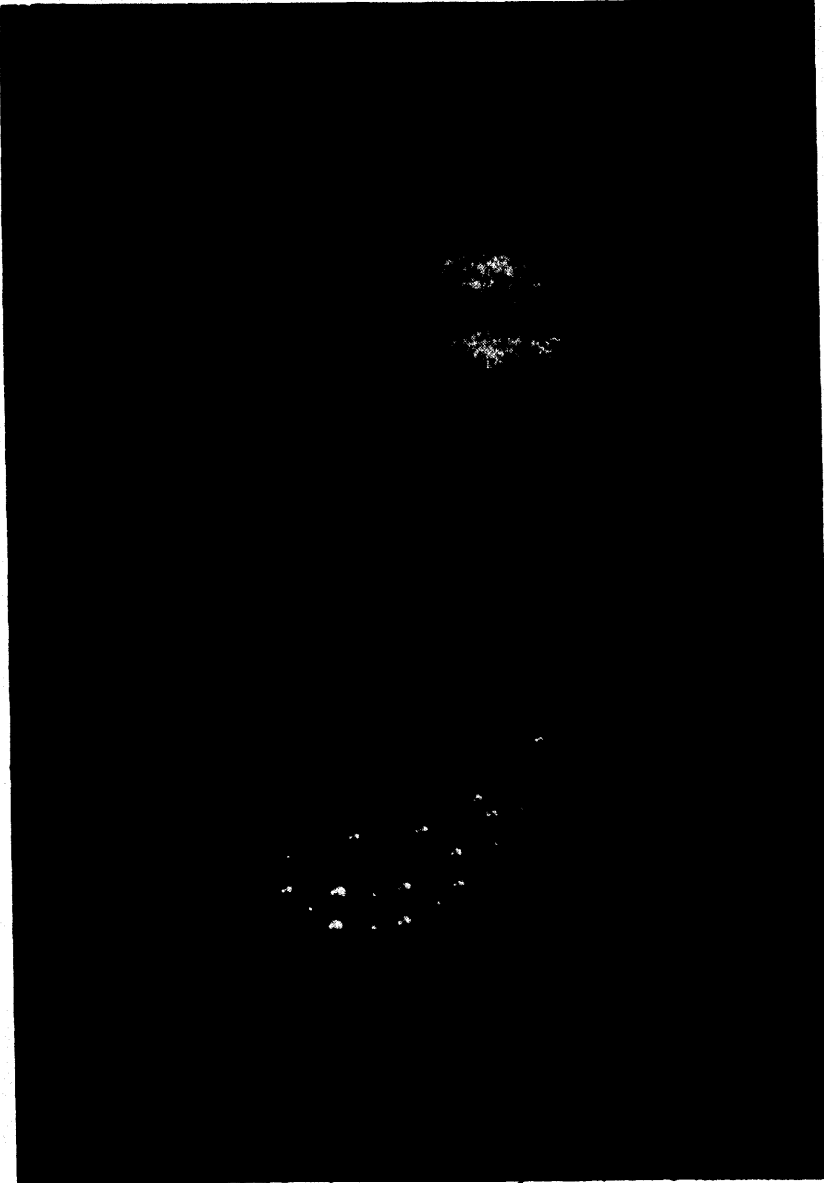

The third government report showed the amount of grains and soybeans placed in the price support loan program during November and probably was the only one of even slightly bullish character. Dealers said, however, it exerted little more than a steady influence in the pits.

Through the week and all ways high in trade consideration was the threat of a longshoremen's strike on the East and Gulf coasts. Dealers said that if the strike is called on Sunday, as seemed likely, export business in that direction virtually would cease and probably lead to an embargo on grain shipments to ports in both directions.

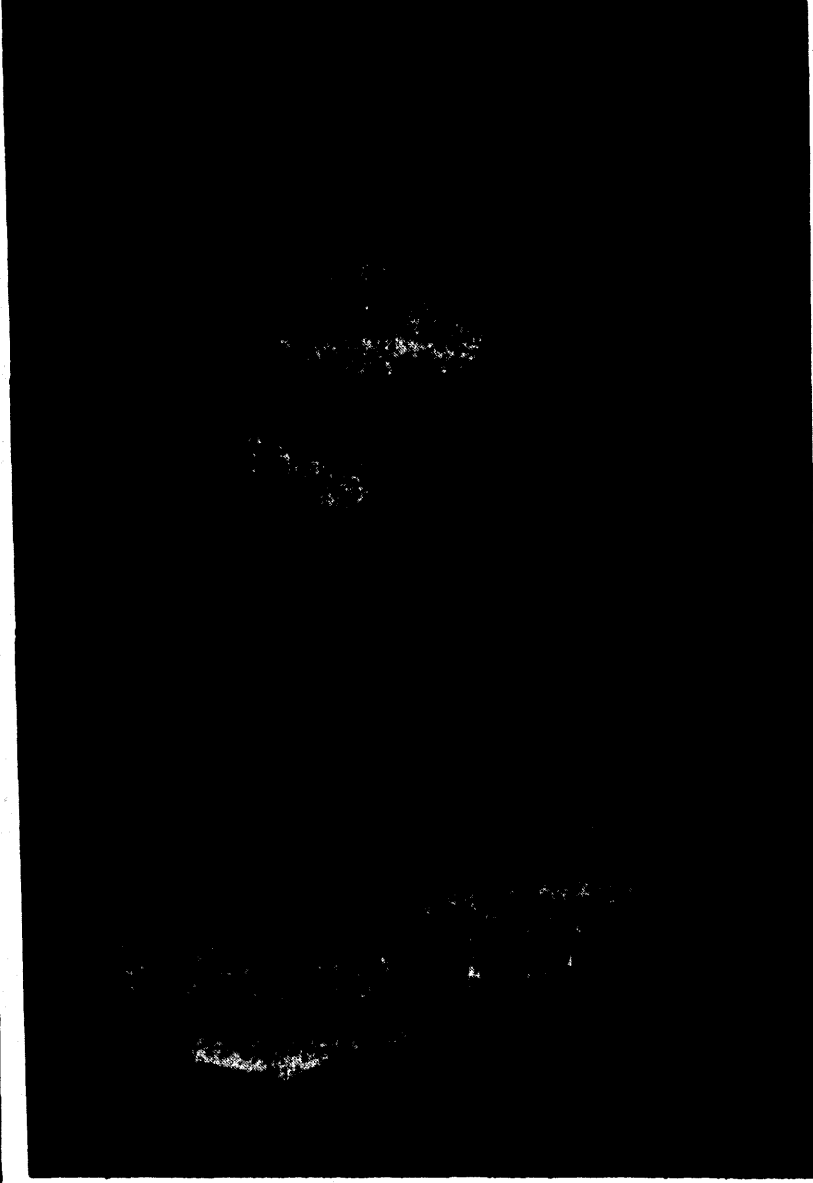

Wheat closed 3/4 cent a bushel higher to 1 1/2 cents lower than a week ago, March 22 1/2-1/2, corn 1/4-1/2 lower, March 11 1/2-1/2, oats 2 1/2 higher to 1/2 lower, March 12 1/2-1/2, soybeans 1 1/2-1/4 higher, March 21 3/4-1/2, soybeans 1 1/2-1/4 lower, January 2 1/4-1/2.

Patricia Isaacs Bride Of Springfield Man

Miss Patricia Ann Isaacs, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. Glenn Isaacs of Springfield, formerly of this city, became the bride yesterday morning, Dec. 22, of Airman Second Class John Joseph Sibons of Springfield. The ceremony was performed in the Church of the Little Flower in that city. The Reverend Father Charles Olshesky performed the double ring ceremony at 10 o'clock.

Airman Sibons is the son of Mr. and Mrs. George Sibons of Springfield. The Isaacs home in Jacksonville was at 727 Lincoln avenue before the family moved to Springfield.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. She was attended by her sister-in-law, Mrs. Robert Isaacs, who was matron of honor. Paul Techtow of Danville, Ill., was best man.

Washington PTA Entertained By School Chorus

The Washington elementary school chorus under the direction of Fred Omer entertained the December meeting of the P.T.A. in the school gymnasium, Tuesday, Dec. 19.

A delightful social hour followed. The gymnasium was attractively decorated by students from Mrs. Stewart's and Mrs. Coker's classes.

Good News For The Owl People

The most wisdom is usually contained in the fewest words. Unfortunately, the same can be said about nonsense.

Thanks to science, however, which considers no truths permanent and all truths subject to constant testing, 20th-century man has a way to separate the two. There is an unofficial branch of science devoted to folk sayings, which up to our time have been accepted without question.

Making a silk purse out of a sow's ear was one of its minor triumphs in recent years. A study at a university which proved that an apple a day does indeed help keep the doctor away was as pleasing to orchard owners as it was surprising to scientists.

Comes word now that Ben Franklin's old bit about "Early to bed, early to rise makes a man healthy, wealthy and wise," may be due for revision. It is assumed, that is, that Ben meant sleeping soundly, not tossing and turning all night long.

New hope for insomniacs is given by a British psychologist, who found that some people do better work after spending a sleepless night than they do after snoozing solidly for the standard eight.

It seems that when people are fully alert, they sometimes tend to overconcentrate and become tense so that their efficiency suffers. The guy with dark circles under his eyes, on the other hand, is so beat to begin with that he can turn out a good job even when working under noisy conditions.

All of this, of course, awaits further clinical confirmation. In the meantime, a lot of us may want to try it out on the boss.

Parents Worried About 17-Year-Old Daughter's Unusual Friendship With 14-Year-Old Boy

LANDERS

By ANN LANDERS
Dear Ann Landers: Our daughter will be 17 in March. Every comment on how attractive she is yet she has never been asked for a date.

Penny has always been fairly well-behaved and has never given us any trouble—until now. She has taken an unusual interest in a 14-year-old boy who lives down the street. He comes from a good family, is intelligent, and nice looking, but much too young for Penny. His parents are friends of ours and they don't like it any more than we do.

The two of them usually giggle and whisper like 9-year-olds but at times they make cow-eyes at each other and moon around like lovers. Frankly, we can't figure it.

I tried to shame Penny into dropping the boy, but she became furious. Now she lies about where she has been after school, and sometimes she sneaks out the back door to meet him after she says she is going to bed.

What advice can you give us?

—CONCERNED
Dear Concerned: Ridicule and preaching will do no good. It will only cause her to be more devoted and defiant. Say nothing about the boy for now. Accept the situation as you would if he were three years older. If Penny hasn't lost interest in this boy by the time she has reached her 17th birthday, see a counselor who deals with problem adolescents. He will steer you.

Dear Ann Landers: Recently we sent a lovely wedding gift to the daughter of close friends. It was an abstract painting, and we felt sure she would like it.

Last week the friends had a reception at their home, honoring the young couple. The wedding gifts were on display. Both my husband and I searched high and low for the painting. Finally, I asked the mother of the bride where it was.

She said, "Unfortunately, it was not possible to display ALL the gifts so we had to leave some in the boxes."

Both my husband and I thought this was in poor taste. Are we wrong? Should we suggest to the bride that if she doesn't care for the painting she can return it for credit and get something to her liking? —M.

Dear M.: If gifts are being displayed, ALL gifts should be shown—no more.

Selecting art for others is a hazardous business, and I think it would be generous of you to tell the bride she may exchange the painting if it isn't something SHE would have selected.

Dear Ann Landers: Am I being "stiff-necked and unreasonable?" Brad and I have been going together for two-and-a-half years. He is 29, I am 31. I will be meeting his mother soon for the first time. She lives in another city, and this will be her 75th birthday. People who know her say she is a strict moralist and rules the family with an iron hand.

Brad has asked me to "forget" about my previous marriage if she should raise the question. Also he would prefer to have his mother believe I am younger than he is, instead of older. Finally, he wants me to tell his mother I am a school teacher, when I am really a secretary to an administrator in the public school system.

He claims none of these distortions are serious and that I would be making an old lady very happy. What do you say? —TICKLISH SUBJECT

Dear Subject: Tell Brad that perhaps he'd better find himself a younger school teacher—with no previous marriage. Unless he is willing to present you to his mother as you are, don't go.

Are you tempted to smoke because the crowd does? If so, send for ANN LANDERS' booklet, "Teenage Smoking," enclosing with your request 10 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Elf Delays Santa — But He's On His Way And Arrives Tuesday

EDITOR'S NOTE—"Will Santa Claus really come to our house?" That is the most anxious question in America today. It is answered in the following column, written for parents to read aloud to their children. Since its first appearance in 1948, it has become a scrapbook favorite in many homes.

By HAL BOYLE

NORTH POLE (AP)—He's off! Santa Claus is on his way at last.

The jolly old saint and his famous reindeer are zooming through the arctic skies right now, heading for the American border. He'll reach it tonight.

The northern lights switched on to a clear, steady green—the "go-ahead" signal. And the Royal Canadian Mounted Police sent Santa this message:

"We are clearing all air lines in your path, old boy. There is no speed limit for you tonight. The sky is yours. Go as fast as you like. Good luck!"

And Santa needed that wide clear road in the sky. For his big sleigh was piled so high with gifts it overflowed. It looked like a flying haystack as it raced through the cold crisp air.

"Oh, dear; oh, dear," worried Santa, just before the takeoff. "I do hope none of the presents fall out and bean some poor innocent rabbit down below. I believe this must be the heaviest load I've had in 20 years."

"What is he fretting about?" whispered Donner to Vixen. "He's only riding in the sleigh. He has to pull it."

Just then Mrs. Santa Claus came running out waving a long piece of paper.

"You almost forgot your list of good children," she said. "Never mind," replied Santa. "I don't need it. This year I'm going to give a present to every little boy and girl, good or bad. The bad ones will feel sorry for themselves because they know they don't deserve a nice present. It'll make 'em try harder to be good next year."

"That isn't according to Hoyle," said Mrs. Claus, who likes to play bridge. "But it does make sense, you old sofie."

Santa stood up to crack his whip in the air—the signal to be off. But then he heard a small voice crying:

"Wait! Please wait!"

It was Cluny, Santa's favorite little elf. The other elves gossiped about Cluny and said she was clumsy at making toys. But Santa knew it was only because she was so young. He liked her because she had a good heart.

"Here," said the tiny elf, holding up a small shiny figure.

"What's this? What's this?" grumbled Santa. "You're too late. My pack is already loaded."

"It is only my present to the world," said Cluny. "I made it at night in my room—all by myself."

Santa took the little figure from her hands. It was a beautiful angel with butterfly wings and a robe of purest white. In her hand the angel held a small magic wand.

"It is the angel of peace," explained Cluny.

"Why, Cluny!" said Santa. "This is better than all the other gifts put together. I'll see that your angel waves her wand for one day at least over every home in the land."

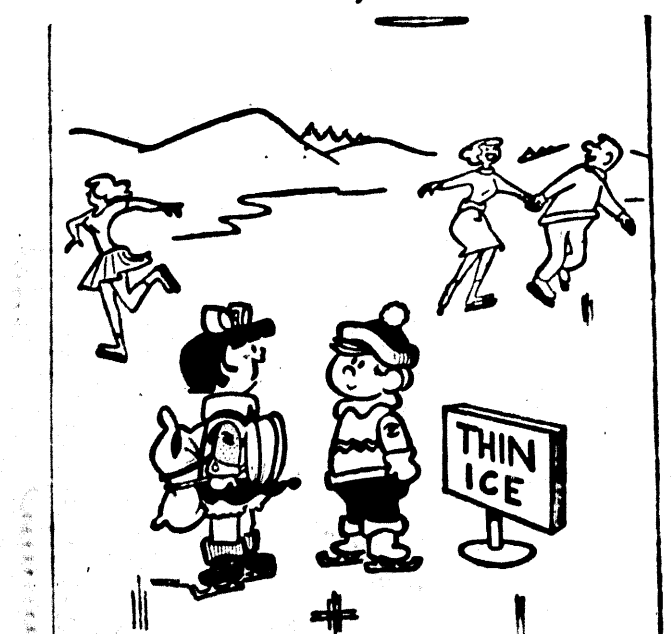

And he picked up Cluny and gave her a big whisker-ticky kiss on her cheek. Then he picked up his long whip again and cracked it sharply in the frosty air.

"Ho, ho, ho! Here we go!" he roared. "Ho, ho, ho! Here we go!"

The eight reindeer leaped forward and the big sleigh began sliding through the snow. Faster, faster, faster—and then they were off the ground and into the air.

Santa was on his way. And tonight, if you go to bed, he will come to your house, wherever you are.

Few Demand Tax Reform Along With Proposed Cut

By BRUCE BISSAT
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.
WASHINGTON (NEA) — White House sources say President Kennedy and his advisers have not even decided in what area of the tax structure to seek reforms in tandem with his 1963 tax reduction proposals.

It is possible the whole matter of reform may be kept in a kind of "play by ear" status to allow the administration to tailor its position to the developing tax outlook in Congress.

House Ways and Means Chairman Wilbur Mills, who urges a link between reform and reduction, suggests consideration might be given next year to altering the present preferential rate on capital gains.

Beyond this there are as yet no specifics. But tax economists' studies indicate that, at present, personal income levels, elimination or reduction of a wide variety of exclusions, deductions, exemptions and credits could yield up to $25 billion in additional income tax revenues.

Already well-advertised difficulties stand in the way of reform.

The very argument made by Mills and some others—that loophole-closing would produce revenues to offset tax losses through rate reduction—is seen by some experts as an argument to diminish the stimulative effect of a tax cut on the general economy.

Many loopholes were opened through pressure from special groups which complained that high tax rates worked hardship upon them. These groups are expected to combat any change that would add to their burdens.

Aside from Mills, Secretary of the Treasury Dillon and a few others, no measurable interest in reform exists today.

Ladd Plumley, president of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, recommends not reform but sharp spending cuts to match the $8 to $9 billion tax slash the Chamber proposes. His view: reform belongs in a separate bill—later.

AFL-CIO leaders have plumped for swift tax rate reduction, though reliable sources say some of the federation's staff people have argued intrinsically for reform.

In urging a two-stage $11 billion tax cut, the Committee for Economic Development conceded three pages of its 41-page report to reform — of the excise tax framework. It offered no income tax reforms at this time.

The President's Labor Management Committee, proposing a $10 billion cut, said reforms are necessary but should not be a cause of delay in enacting the reduction.

Kennedy's response to businessmen's queries, put to him after his New York tax speech, indicate he comprehends the difficulties confronting reform and has no thought of going whole hog. "I quite agree that to launch a full-scale battle on general reform... would be unwise," he said.

The administration nevertheless is committing itself to seeking some measure of structural tax revision.

Since some added revenues would result it is a way of "landing in between," of easing the impact of tax cuts on the deficit column and thus finding some accommodation with those in Congress who will be demanding heavy spending cuts.

Argument can be made, too, that if some reform is not now joined to reduction, broad reforms proposed later will be quickly given the unpalatable label, "tax increase."

Less liberal treatment of capital gains, for example, could in some tax researchers' judgment produce $1 billion to $2 billion or more in extra taxes.

The Brookings Institution is in the midst of a five-year study of government finances, including tax reform. The study director, Joseph Pechman, suggested in a paper a few years back that a truly broad-based individual income tax law might get rid of countless exclusions, exemptions and credits.

In this list he would include the special treatment now accorded social insurance benefits (public and private), unemployment and workmen's compensation, veterans' pensions and various other kinds of military benefits.

AP Movie-Television Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Betty Grable returns to the footlights tonight after a two-year absence, and it's a pleasure to report that she's still in great shape.

That means 37-24-35. "I haven't done a thing but play golf for two years," she reports. "But when I reported for costume fittings, I found the dimensions were exactly the same as when I was making pictures at Fox."

Las Vegas visitors will be able to renew their acquaintance with those famous dimensions during the next several weeks. Betty opens tonight with her oldtime costar Dan Daily in "Guys and Dolls" at the Dunes Hotel.

She'll be playing the role of Adelaide, which she might have done in the Marlon Brando-Frank Sinatra film versions except for an accident to her dog.

"I had a date one day to talk to Sam Goldwyn about doing the picture. It happened that on the same day my dog, who was 14 years old and like one of the family, hurt his paw and I had to rush him to the hospital. So I sent word that I couldn't keep the date," she said.

"When Mr. Goldwyn heard that I broke a date with him because of a sick dog, he sent word that he never wanted to see me." Vivian Blaine got the role.

Betty is returning to action not because of any lure of the grease paint—"I never was very hammy"—but because of the convenience of the engagement. She and Harry James now make their home in Las Vegas.

"It's a cinch for me," she said. "I just report to the show at 8 and go home at 11."

Betty's two-year layoff was the longest of her career. She started hoofing professionally by 7, was a Goldwyn girl at 13 — "I lied and said I was 15." For a decade she ruled as queen of the Fox lot, going from one glittering musical to another.

The easy life seemed good to her when she and Harry moved to Las Vegas.

"Harry works eight months of the year at the Flamingo," she said. "He travels with the band five weeks, and he spends seven weeks at Del Mar every summer. I could have worked if I wanted to travel, but I've never been away from my daughters and I didn't want to."

Daughter Vicki is now 18 and a student at theater arts at the University of Arizona. Jessica, 15, is at home.

FINDING THE WAY

Heart of Christmas

By RALPH W. LOEW, D. D.
Written For NEA

A few years ago I stood between two young men in Japan. The one, a lad of 13, the son of a commercial fisherman, had been injured when a charge of dynamite had gone off unexpectedly. Now he was without hands and eyes. I watched him as he read Braille with his lips, rubbing the strange dots across his rather swollen mouth.

The other young man was a tall, handsome, blonde fellow, an American college student, who had been playing baseball in Japan for a season. He had come to hear an American speak and now we three stood together.

It was a strange threesome, for I, an American clergyman, found myself searching for a new understanding of the faith that holds my life. Believing that God is a God of love, what could you say to this maimed youngster that could enable him to know that he is not a forgotten human being? He would have many problems if he had had the ability to feel with his fingers and see with his eyes. How could he feel and see something that was beyond hands and eyes?

Or for that matter, what would you say to the handsome young man from the West? He had everything—youth, ability, freedom to move and to act, his whole future full of promise. How could he feel and see the meaning behind his wealth of ability and his prodigious freedom?

Standing before these two you discover yourself searching for words. It was into such a world that the Word came searching. There are men and women everywhere who are beaten down by events, tortured by cruelties. In the same world there are those who seem to have everything. In such a world there is a Manger, the birth of a Child and the ancient story told over and over of the coming of One who is beyond words, who gives men meaning in the total experience of their lives.

Many Christmasers went by, almost entirely unmarked, until an imprisoned hero sent word to Jesus, asking a poignant question, "Art thou he that should come, or do we look for another?" To which Jesus replied, "Go and tell John what you hear and see: the blind receive their sight, and the lame walk, lepers are cleansed and the deaf hear, and the dead are raised up, and the poor have the Gospel preached to them, blessed is he who takes no offense at me."

Here is the heart of Christmas. It is the fact which stands beyond the faith and the challenge in these holy days, to communicate this meaning to those who seem to have so little, and to those who seem to have everything.

Feels Freeman Will Decline To Fight For New Wheat Bill

By OVID A. MARTIN

WASHINGTON (AP)—There is speculation in farm and government circles here that the Kennedy administration may choose not to make an all out fight for its new wheat program at a farmer referendum next spring.

Opponents of the program intend to wage a determined campaign against the new plan, and they expect the administration to wage a strong fight to influence growers to vote favorably.

Some top-ranking Agriculture Department officials say the administration would be taking too much of a gamble on the future of its farm program approach if it launched a grass-roots campaign to sell the wheat program. These officials believe the odds favor opponents of the program. The American Farm Bureau Federation made clear at its recent convention in Atlanta that it will marshal all its forces to beat the wheat program. It will picture the wheat referendum as an issue which affects the entire farm program.

"Farming By Directives" The Farm Bureau contends that the basic issue before the wheat producers "is whether American agriculture is to remain free or whether we shall turn to a system of farming by government directives."

The federation, which wants to eliminate all farm controls in time, will seek to convince farmers that defeat of the wheat program would be interpreted by Congress and the general public as a sign that farmers do not want the Kennedy administration's so-called supply management or production control program for any crops outside those grown in the South—such as cotton, rice, tobacco and peanuts.

Certainly the federation will enlist the referendum aid of dairy men, feed grain producers, poultrymen and livestock producers who do not want controls on their particular crops.

The administration's new wheat program, which was authorized by Congress this year, beginning with the 1964 crop, would set up a multiple price plan and production limitations for top-priced grain in terms of bushels. Wheat sold for food use and all or part of that sold for export would draw the top price. Wheat grown above quotas for these uses would bring lower prices.

Illinois Farmers Outlook Letter

SOYBEAN PRICES TO BE CONTROLLED BY GOVERNMENT

Last summer, long before soybean harvest, one of my colleagues wrote a short press release to the effect that it would probably pay to store soybeans this year. He noted that prices then offered for the new crop were below the effective price support level. He reasoned that farmers would put enough beans under price support to lift the market price above the support level.

The forecast was a reasonably successful one. Prices of soybeans did go up, above the support level. Yet this forecast may have misled some people—because it was used in some publications long after its useful life had expired. The point is that economic conditions are constantly changing so that price prospects and plans based on them often get out of date faster than women's dresses.

Now let's review some of the basic facts of the soybean situation. Background. The soybean industry has grown very rapidly. Production and use have more than doubled in the past 10 years. New records are almost as regular as New Year's Eve. But 1959 and 1960 were exceptions. Neither year produced a record crop. But domestic use and export demand continued to increase. Storage stocks shrank. There were not enough beans to fill all orders at the prevailing prices. So prices went up sharply during the 1960-61 marketing year.

Soybean production got back to normal in 1961—farmers produced a record crop. And prices fluctuated around the support level of $2.30 a bushel.

By 1962 farmers produced 659 million bushels of soybeans, according to the official estimate that was made in November. This was 30 million bushels less than the record crop of 1961. But the carryover of old beans on Oct. 1 was 58 million bushels, compared with only 6 million carried over in the fall of 1961. Thus we have for this marketing year a total supply of 727 million bushels, or 28 million more than in the previous year. (These official figures may underestimate the increase in the supply of beans actually available for sale. This is because field losses were much less this year than in 1961.) The available supply of soybeans seems likely to provide for all domestic and export needs—with 50 to 70 million bushels left over next fall.

The national average price support level is $2.25 a bushel, 5 cents less than last year. The effective support level in most Illinois counties is several cents above the national average.

Sales of government-owned soybeans are expected to keep prices from rising much above the local loan values. On Oct. 1 the CCC had control of about 11 million bushels of soybeans. Price support loans on 1962 crop beans will mature on May 31. The government has announced minimum resale prices that are equal to six or eight cents more than the present price support levels in the counties. That is, whenever prices paid to farmers are six to eight cents over the effective local support level, it may be cheaper for buyers to get beans from government stocks.

Loans Now Available To Build Recreation Areas On The Farm

Farmers Home Administration is now accepting loan applications from family farmers for the development of recreation enterprises on their farms. John F. Lawless, acting supervisor of the agency for Morgan county, announces.

Loans also are available to non-profit associations of farmers and others living in rural communities to cover the cost of shifting land to different uses, including recreation.

Among the enterprises that now may be financed by a FHA loan are stables and horses for riding, picnic grounds, and boat docks, row boats and equipment for fishing.

Associations may use FHA loans to develop a large recreation area, such as a park or lake shore, to convert land now being cropped into a grazing or wildlife refuge, and to establish a forested area, among other enterprises.

Lawless said that his agency will use its regular lending programs to finance the new recreation loans. The maximum amount of intermediate credit farmers can obtain to cover operating costs of a recreation project is $35,000. Under the real estate loan program they can borrow a maximum of $60,000 to develop land and buildings for recreation.

However, it is expected that the average loan nationally for on-farm recreation activities will be considerably less than these top amounts.

Intermediate-term loans run a maximum of seven years, real estate loans a maximum of 40 years. In both cases the interest rate is five per cent.

Must Have Background To qualify for a recreation loan, a farmer must have background needed to be successful in the proposed farm and recreation enterprise. After the loan is made, he must continue to receive a substantial part of his income from farming.

Recreation loans are aimed at helping family farmers supplement their incomes. Lawless said. His office will assist borrowers in working out a plan for operating the recreation projects to make the best use of all their farm resources.

Nonprofit associations of rural residents may borrow up to $1

CHAPIN COMMUNITY CLUB PARTY AT LEGION DEC. 22nd

CHAPIN—The Chapin Community club held its monthly meeting Dec. 10 at the Legion home. The president, Miller Ober, called the meeting to order. The secretary read the previous minutes and the treasurer gave the treasurer's report. Both reports were accepted as read.

There will be a Christmas party on Dec. 22 beginning at 7:30 p.m. at the Legion home. Santa Claus will be present with treats for the children. Refreshments will be served.

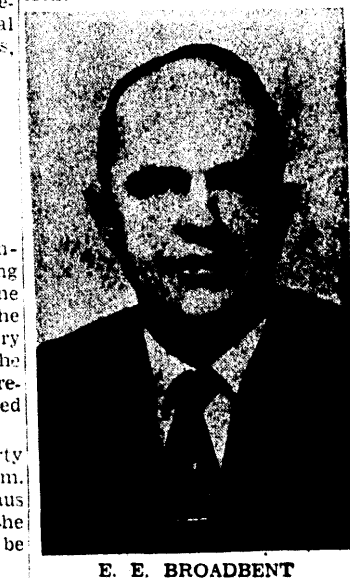

Anyone still interested in the lighting contest, please contact Donald Middendorf. Illinois farm landlords paid a record-sized tax bill of $126 million this year, according to a University of Illinois professor of agricultural law. The tax, based on 1961 levies, jumped 33 percent over the year before and is 97 percent more than in 1950. Real estate taxes absorbed about 12 percent of total Illinois net farm income.

Predicts Strong Pork Price Early In 1963

Swine producers can expect generally favorable hog prices in early 1963, followed by a decline next fall, a University of Illinois livestock marketing economist believes. Here is how E. E. Broadbent views the present hog outlook:

E. E. BROADBENT

The peak slaughter of the fall and winter period has passed. Hogs have moved to market from five to six pounds heavier than average, with little discount for heavy weights. Hogs weighing 240 pounds bring about the same prices as those weighing 180 pounds.

While the market has not discounted heavier hogs, producers should keep hogs moving to market at 200-240 pound weights. The market cannot absorb more lard at high prices.

Recent sales of broilers at 23 to 25 cents in grocery stores present clear evidence of competition for pork. Fat hogs face stiffer competition from poultry meats, particularly broilers. Increasing supplies of beef may also influence all meat prices during the first half of the year.

Government pig crop reports point to a tapering-off of hog marketings during the first part of

This Week At Dixon Springs

During the recent six-day deer hunting season, the human population in Pope county swelled as some 5,000 to 6,000 hunters moved through the woods and fields in search of the wary white-tailed deer. Although 1,361 deer were weighed through the check station, wildlife experts say the kill was considerably less than the estimated annual increase in the deer population. So bow-and-arrow hunters still have a splendid opportunity to silently whiz the feathered shaft into this elusive game.

Kill Greatest In Pope According to a charting of kills by Dick Andrews, University of Illinois wildlife researcher, the Dixon Springs Experiment Station environs furnished about 50 percent of the deer harvested. Again, as in past years, the greatest concentration of kills occurred in the northeastern part of Pope county. In one square mile of this area, 36 deer were taken.

The first three days of the season—Friday, Saturday and Sunday—accounted for 85 percent of the kill, indicating that there were probably a lot of weekend hunters and that more of the deer increase could be taken in a split season involving two weekends. The weekend kill totaled 1,150, with slightly more than 200 taken in the last three days.

Blood Samples From Deer Dick Andrews and the University of Illinois were interested in obtaining blood samples from deer to check for leptospirosis and other diseases. Dick reports that they were able to obtain such samples from about 25 percent of the deer coming through the check station. Fleeting, health and general appearance of the animals was excellent.

Safe Hunters Weather conditions were excellent, with clear, warm days throughout the season. With 5,000 to 6,000 hunters roaming the woods of the county, it is to the hunters' credit that no fatalities occurred; nor were there any forest fires, even though conditions were dry. Reports are that the hunters were good sportsmen and few game law violations were detected.

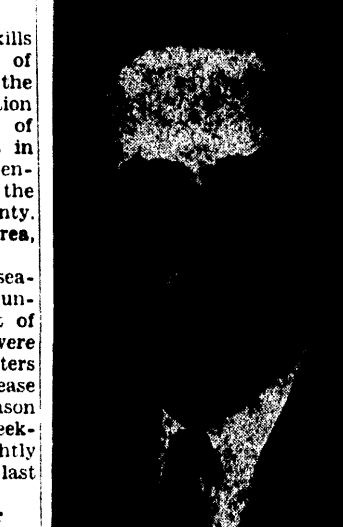

Hunters who were unable to obtain permits prior to the season had little difficulty in obtaining reissued permits as they were turned in at the checking stations. During the first day, more than 500 hunters were present at the checking station with their names on a list for the reissues of permits. It is reported that this waiting list was taken care of the first day.

Many unusual stories are heard during the deer-hunting season. Many of them are the same ones that were told last year and the year before that and the year before that. Doubtless some of them are true. Unquestionably they are interesting. Anyway, it all leads us to believe that the best part of hunting is the telling of it. We can tell you that Pope county is a good place to hunt deer, and this is true!

Forecasts Lower Beef Prices Next Year

American consumers can look forward to plentiful beef supplies in 1963. And cattle feeders and producers can expect slightly lower prices than they received in 1962.

Cattlemen sent about one percent more beef to market in 1962 than in the previous year. However, 1963 beef production will probably rise 3 to 4 percent over 1962, University of Illinois agricultural economist M. B. Kirtley reports.

M. B. KIRTLEY

Here is how Kirtley views the 1963 beef cattle outlook: Cattle price trends are likely to differ considerably from those of the past year. Prices no longer follow a regular seasonal pattern. Heavy marketings may bring excess supplies and lower prices at any time of the year.

More To Market Rising cattle supplies coming to market during the first quarter will cause prices to decline. By early spring fed cattle prices will probably be below those of a year earlier but may make some recovery later in the spring.

Late summer and fall prices will probably not show the strength that occurred in 1962. Feeders should study quarterly reports of cattle on feed issued by the U. S. Department of Agriculture for signs of future marketing changes. The number of cattle on feed will increase further. It may be about 7 to 8 percent higher on Jan. 1 than it was a year ago. Most of the increases have occurred in the West and Southwest.

Since the western market for beef has expanded, the increase in western cattle feeding offers little competition in eastern beef markets supplied by corn belt feeders. The greatest effect of expanding western feeding has been the strong competition for stocker and feeder cattle.

102 Million Head Cattle numbers on farms and ranches on Jan. 1 will total about 102 million head, an increase of about 21 percent in the past year. Since dairy cattle numbers have declined, this total now includes a larger proportion of beef cattle. Cattle slaughter will rise 3 to 4 percent.

The cattle industry will remain relatively stable for the next few years. With the strong demand for feeder cattle, heifers have generally moved through feedlots to slaughter. Cow numbers have therefore built up slowly, and the calf crop has not risen so rapidly as in other cattle cycles.

Cow slaughter may increase somewhat, but it will probably not boost total beef supplies greatly because of the probable reduction in imports.

Even though beef supplies hit a new record of 89 pounds per person in 1962, strong consumer demand kept cattle prices up. Higher slaughter in 1963 will mean about 90 pounds per person. However, consumer demand will not increase so much as in 1962 to help boost beef prices as it did this past year.

Because lambs are fed over a shorter period and utilize carotene better than cattle, very few cases of vitamin A deficiency have been found in lamb feeding, a University of Illinois animal scientist reports.

MAN ON THE SKEWBALD MARE

By Nelson C. Nye

Rafe scowled and tried to peer through the darkness for a better look at the man who called himself Brownwater Bill. If Rafe could only get hold of an end in this thing, get it straight in his head what all this was about.

"If you helped me, how come?" Rafe asked. "You don't know me from Adam."

"Have to be blind not to know you're a Bender. Sticks out all over you, and from what Lucy said."

"If you heard anything at all you heard Lucy say Rafe's dead!"

It was Bill's turn to frown. "She had her reason," he said. "Man, you have to trust some one. Nobody can go it alone in this world. People the most of 'em, ain't as bad as you think. You just got to give them a chance. Luce and me, we was fixin' to get married till Duke put his foot down."

"Duke?" Rafe snorted. "It wasn't for him to say."

"Looks like he's kinda dim in your memory. Duke aims to get what Duke wants—even if he has to bury half the gold-rammed county. He was powerful persuasive."

Some of what Brownwater Bill went on to say was admittedly guesswork but certain cold facts were pretty readily apparent. Spangler, a holy terror with a gun, and about the hardest formation a man was like to bump into, had been with Bender horses. He'd been seen ventilating my carcass if I even in the process by Rafe's mouth as open my mouth to brother and the banker, Alpher. Duke has been more or Chilton, which same had lost less keepin' him in line by no time getting out of that promising she'll be Spangler's neighborhood. From this day wife the day Duke gets full title on you couldn't have lured to Gourd an' Vine. He's got Chilton out of town on a bet. Luce believin' the first time That Duke was still enjoy—she crosses him I'll be turned into a colander an' she'll be turned over to Spangler. It's enough to cramp rats but, believe me, it works."

The fat man hitched at his pants and spat gloomily. "Expect we better be shakin' some dust."

Rafe had finished putting on his boots. Now he buckled on his spurs and kneed the Bender horse after Brownwater Bill. He would sure like to know what had happened to Bathsheba. A man hates to give up the things he's been used to.

No kind of threat from any pipsqueak like Duke was going to pull much weight against a hard chunk like Spangler. The man would laugh in his face! It didn't look like, no matter how fierce an itch the guy might have for their sister, the promise of Luce, by itself, would put Spangler to sawing second fiddle for Duke.

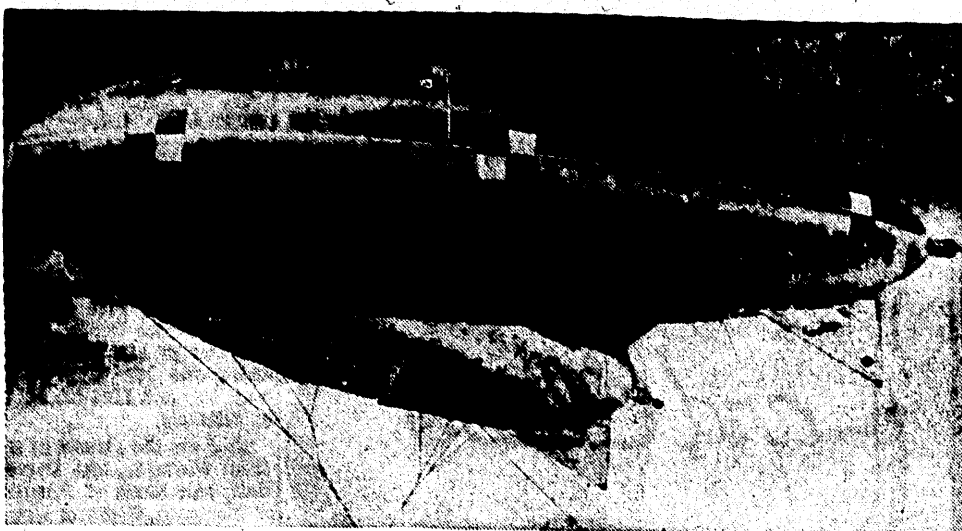

There had to be something else, something more, something Spangler would want even worse to get his hands on and which, at least so far, had been kept out of his reach.

It was just beginning to get light enough to see by—everything fused in dreary shadings of gray—when they caught their first glimpse of the buildings.

Brownwater nodded his head. "Half a mile." He spat out his tobacco. "Shouldn't be no trouble unless somebody recognizes you. Duke left two of Spangler's gummies on tap in case the Ol' Man or Luce got minded to hunt greener pastures." He tugged his hat lower over his eyes. "I'll lead the way."

Rafe's jaws tightened. That whole business back yonder—every last lucky part of it, could have been play-acted for Rafe Bender's special benefit. Was that tug Brownwater gave to his hat a signal?

The many shapes of Christmas

The spirit of Christmas is tall, short, lean, plump, young, old. It's a man. Or a woman. Or a beautiful child. Doesn't necessarily wear a Santa suit and hardly ever goes down a chimney. Nevertheless, Christmas is real—and is embodied in the lives of countless persons of good-will, whoever and wherever they may be. May their numbers multiply.

Christmas Greetings

Charles Dickens wrote, "I have always thought of Christmas-time — apart from the veneration due its sacred name and origin — as a good time, a kind, forgiving, charitable, pleasant time; the only time of the year when men and women seem by one consent to open their shut up hearts freely and think of other people . . ."

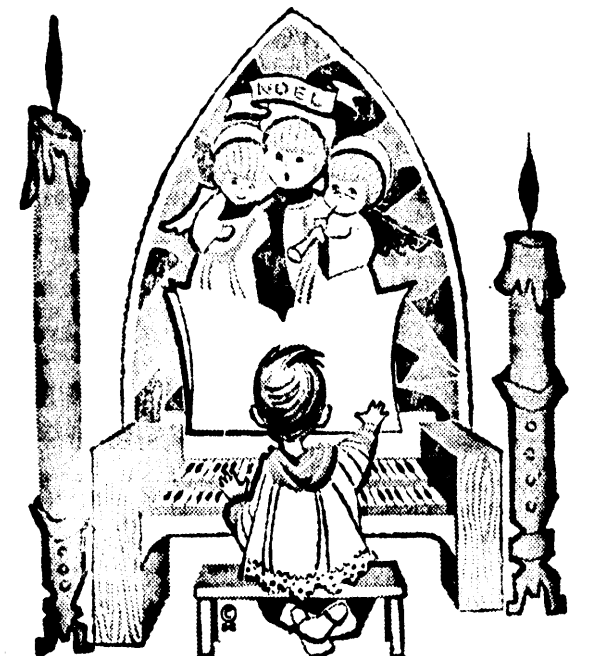

How much better the world could be — if each person would accept the spirit of this interpretation of Christmastime and apply it through all the days and seasons of the year.

We hope that your Christmas will be a memorable one, and that the year ahead will bring you good health and happiness.

Crimsons, Routt And IC All Victims On Hardwood Friday

Lions Hand Cold Jacks 67-48 Loss

Frigid Crimsons Hit 30 Per Cent

Lanphier caught a cold Jacksonville five with 4:32 left in the first half and went like gangbusters to hand the Crimsons their fourth defeat of the campaign Friday night here, 67-48.

The Lions, hitting 66 per cent from the field in the second frame, came from a two and three point deficit, and on Wally Martin's jumper from the side, tied the count 19-19.

6-4 center Calvin Pettit, who fell below his 23 point average, gave the Lions their lead for the evening on a tip and a 21-19 margin.

Jacksonville, hitting a frigid four of 13 in the frame, never again saw the lead in their favor as they trailed by as many as 20 in the final frame.

Hampered by an inability to hit from the field, Jacksonville also missed 13 free throws at the stripe.

Fouls Hamper Sergeant Sophomore Dennis Sergeant, who had been averaging 17 from the floor for the past three games, caused 16 markers but picked up three fouls in the first quarter and left the game.

The Jacks, then limited to their outside shooting with a 1-5-1 attack were unable to make up the loss. Senior forward Ron Yates carried the scoring in the second frame with six of the period's ten points.

Sergeant returned to the floor with little less than two minutes showing in the half and hit a 30-foot "put" shot to bring the Crimsons within two 23-21.

Lanphier struck three times within the last 55 seconds on Dwight Lambert's drive, Mike Rodgers' easy two under and dual charity tosses by Lambert to carry a 23-21 lead into the intermission.

Hitting a mere 2 of 16 in the first stanza, while the Jacks found 5 of 14, the Lions came to life in the following three periods hitting 9 of 12 in the second; 9 of 15 in the third and 9 of 16 in the fourth for a 40 per cent average for the course.

Entering the second half, the Crimsons tried to pull themselves together but could only manage a meager 5 of 15 from the court and trailed 47-34 going into the final quarter.

In the final eight minutes, Jacksonville only found the range for 4 of 18 shots from the field, while their guests fired for 9 of 16.

Big guns for the Lions during their spurge in the second half were Pettit with eight and Lambert with five.

Instrumental in leading the final canto headway was Rodgers, who stashed away six markers of his evening's high 18.

Lanphier wound up with a 3-1 mark against Jacksonville's 3-4 record.

W. VIRGINIA WINS IN KY. TOURNAMENT

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) — Senior Rod Thorn led fast-breaking West Virginia to a 70-65 victory over Oregon State Friday night in the first round of the University of Kentucky Invitational Basketball Tournament.

Thorn, hot on floor play in the first half when he scored only six points, found his shooting eye after intermission and wound up with 18.

Auburn Hits 50 Per Cent In 81-40 Win

Rockets Suffer Third Defeat

The Auburn Trojans came to town Friday night and buried the Routt Rockets by 41 points with the Trojans hitting a solid 50 per cent for the game in the 81-40 contest.

Routt, shooting a miserable 19 1/2 per cent for the game, couldn't get rolling and Auburn scorched the boards in both halves, both offensively and defensively, although on offense the Trojans rarely needed a second shot.

The best performance for Routt was in the efforts of Chuck Newport, who made his weight felt on the boards, although he only collected six points for the evening.

Pat Fitzpatrick gave his all in rebounding efforts, and led the Rockets in scoring with 12 points.

Center Tom Eoff, only scoring eight points for the game, had his toughest night of the season, and was usually out of good position for effective rebounding.

Bunky Perry, who also hit eight points, controlled the ball well and set up shots for his teammates, but nobody could hit them.

Trojans Control 1st Quarter Routt controlled the tip in the first quarter and went ahead, 1-0, after Fitzpatrick drew a foul underneath.

Seconds later Auburn forward Dave Coble layed one up to make it 2-1, and quickly pulled to an 8-1 lead, and led 18-4 at the end of the first period, with Routt unable to hit.

Auburn, using a give and go offense utilizing the talents of star forwards Dave and Paul Coble, the fast hitting Trojan twins, who fast broke or hit from the sides to give Auburn a 38-14 lead at the half. The Cobles came out just before the half and didn't play the remainder of the game, as the outcome was never in doubt.

Substituting freely in the second half, Auburn continued to roll. Routt still couldn't buy a basket, and shot 21 per cent the last half, slightly bettering the 18 per cent for the first half.

Auburn hit 47 per cent the first half, and went up six points the second half to hit at a 53 per cent clip.

Late in the final period the Routt first five came off the floor to be replaced with the Routt second five, but Auburn had momentum and banged in points until the game ended, winning by an 81-40 spread.

'Stretch' Henderson Makes The Scene

IC Manages 18 In First Half

ST. LOUIS, Mo. — The Illinois College Blueboys took it on the chin Friday evening as Harris Teachers College completely dominated the show, 81-39.

The loss was I.C.'s fifth in seven games. Harris Teachers stands at 7-1 with only a loss to Rolla School of Mines as blemish to a nearly perfect record.

The host team was in command all the way. Sparked by guard Willie McCullister they ran up a 48-18 halftime lead.

McCullister made 18 of his 20 points for the evening in the first half to pace the Hornet offensive show.

The Hornets displayed as tight a defense as the Blueboys have faced thus far. The St. Louis team blocked innumerable Blueboy shots, outbounded them on both boards and stole the ball several times for quick two-pointers on the fast break.

Cold Shooting Illinois College made only 14 of 68 field goal attempts in the game for a dismal 20 per cent. The Hornets connected on 39 of 90 tries for a 43 per cent shooting clip.

The home team snared 54 rebounds in comparison to 24 grabbed by I.C.

Coach Morris inserted several of his freshman recruits into the contest after the Hornets had built up a commanding lead.

The Blueboys will be idle during the holiday recess. They return to action against Elmhurst Jan. 4, at home.

The Evolution of Santa Claus

Prototype of Santa Claus was St. Nicholas of Myra, famous for his generosity to the poor.

Rugged Santa of 1869 was reminiscent of Dickens' Spirit of Christmas Present.

Cartoonist Thomas Nast did much to influence our ideas of Santa Claus. This is how he looked in 1879.

"Yes, I'm really Santa Claus."

By DON OAKLEY
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

Santa Claus, as is well known, is a true-blue American of Dutch descent. He has many cousins in many other lands, of course—St. Nicholas, Kris Kringle, Father Christmas, Father Frost.

Some are much older than he is, but in recent years the influence of America's Santa Claus has been spreading throughout the world.

The whole tribe of Christmas figures dates back traditionally to Nicholas, bishop of Myra in the 4th century and an early Christian saint who was said to have been fond of distributing gifts in secret.

The good bishop's fame and example spread over Europe in succeeding centuries and became identified with the celebration of Christmas. When Dutch colonists came to the New World in the 17th century, they brought their legend of Sant Nikolaas with them.

From Sant Nikolaas to Santa Claus is but a quick twist of the tongue, but it was many years before the name was generally recognized all over the colonies. By that time they had become the United States.

When Clement Clarke Moore wrote his immortal Christmas poem in 1822, he indelibly fixed the general appearance and characteristics of our present-day Santa. Yet the title of his work was "A Visit from St. Nicholas."

It was the political cartoonist Thomas Nast, who drew the Republican elephant and the Democratic donkey, who really made Santa Claus popular. But his appearance still borrowed heavily from Moore's poem.

Today, Santa Claus is no longer an elf but a great, jolly, rotund, full-size man with a heart to match. The North Pole is his headquarters and workshop, except near the end of the year when he embarks upon an intensive order-taking and public relations campaign among his favorite people, children—who are, in fact, the very reason for his existence.

The RED ROVER Now A Hospital Boat

A full-page spread of the USS RED ROVER, hospital ship of the Mississippi Squadron, appearing in HARPER'S WEEKLY, May 9, 1863. Water level and sub-tropical vegetation indicate that artist Theodore R. Davis was reporting the Vicksburg campaign. RED ROVER was the U.S. Navy's first hospital ship.

Holy Cross Sisters 1st Navy Nurses

BY SISTER M. JOHN FRANCIS

ON CHRISTMAS EVE 1862, three Holy Cross Sisters officially boarded the USS RED ROVER to take over the nursing care of the sick and wounded seamen of the Mississippi Squadron. The sidewheel steamer was docked before the Army General Hospital at Mound City, Illinois.

These women were Sister Veronica Scholl, Sister Callista Pontian and Sister Adela Moran. Sister John of the Cross McLoughlin, called Sister St. John on Navy records, joined them February 9, 1863.

In 1862 the U.S. Navy has recognized the origins of the Navy Nurse Corps in these Sisters of the Holy Cross of Saint Mary's Notre Dame, at South Bend, Indiana. The Red Rover was the Navy's first hospital ship.

"These women may be said to be the pioneers or forerunners of the U.S. Navy Nurse Corps, as they were the first women nurses carried aboard a U.S. Navy hospital ship." This is the official statement made in February 1962 issue of ALL HANDS, the Bureau of Naval Personnel Information Bulletin, which goes to the four corners of the globe.

In 1862 the Sisters of the Holy Cross governed from Saint Mary's number over 1,700. In 1862 the American province counted about 170, and of this number, 80 under Mother Angela Gillespie became military nurses in twelve Civil War hospitals. Four of these appear as Navy nurses on certain muster rolls of the Red Rover.

Mississippi Squadron
At the close of 1862 Admiral David D. Porter was in command of the Mississippi Squadron of less than 40 craft—ironclads, wooden gunboats, steam tugs, mortar schooners, transports. The fleet originally called the Western Flotilla, had been built from scratch by the joint efforts of the Army and Navy. October 1, 1862, the name was changed to the Mississippi Squadron, and control of the fleet passed from the Department of War to the Navy Department.

The Squadron was based at the Naval Headquarters at Cairo, the tip of Illinois which juts farther south than Richmond, Virginia. On the Cairo-Mound City complex encircled with camps, pivoted the war in the West. General Grant did not transfer his headquarters to Memphis until January.

The Army general hospital at Cairo was staffed by Sisters of the Holy Cross, as was the Army General Hospital at Mound City, 24 miles north on the Ohio. A Centennial marker on Illinois 37 reports that after the battle of Shiloh 2,200 Union and Confederate wounded were taken care of in the Mound City Hospital. The Navy's only hospital was the converted Mound City hotel.

Teeming with military men and their visitors, with workmen, businessmen and adventurers, Cairo was an unpleasant town of mud, smells and noises. Nearby Mound City was the site of the U.S. Marine Ways and Shipyards where many of the famed Eads ironclads for the Mississippi Squadron were being built.

Day after Christmas, the Red Rover was commissioned as the hospital ship of the Squadron. Three days later the Squadron set out down the Ohio and Mississippi to support the Army in the Yazoo river offensives and the campaign against Vicksburg.

Red Rover's chief function was the medical and nursing care of sick and wounded seamen. She also did duty as a hospital transport for Union and Confederate soldiers and sailors, and she delivered medical stores and supplies along the rivers.

The Navy's first hospital ship remained in active service until November 17, 1865, months after the Mississippi Squadron had been dissolved.

Two documents at hand in 1962 retrace the role of the Red Rover and her Holy Cross Sisters. The first is a full-page illustration from HARPER'S WEEKLY, May 9, 1863, and the second article in the February, 1962, ALL HANDS, "Civil War Hospital Ship" by HARPER'S top artist Theodore R. Davis.

"The Sister," according to research of the Civil War Centennial, was a Sister of the Holy Cross. The Sister-nurses aboard RED ROVER are recognized as pioneers of the Navy Nurse Corps.

The convalescent ward of the RED ROVER forecasts the rehabilitation wards of the newest hospitals of 1962.

is one of those good women whose angelic services have been sung by poets and breathed by grateful convalescents all the world over. The convalescents are placed in a ward for their sole use, where they smoke, read and generally enjoy themselves. The boat itself, a clean, roomy craft, is under the command of a gallant old sailor."

ALL HANDS, 1962
The Davis sketch of Red Rover's 200-bed ward with its detail of wide floor boards and regulation iron bedsteads, appears in the February 1962 issue of ALL HANDS.

The article, "Civil War Hospital Ship," is based on the official ship's history from the Office of the Chief of Naval Operations, Captain F. Kent Loomis, USN (ret.), who sparked the Centennial research, identifies the nurse as Sister Veronica because her name always appears first on muster rolls.

A key passage, a true public salute, is as follows: "On Christmas eve 1862 Sister Veronica, Sister Adela and Sister Callista came aboard for duty which would see the first two Sisters tending the sick on the hospital ship for the duration of the war. On February 9, 1863 they were joined by Sister John of the Cross (carried on reports as Sister St. John), who served as a nurse until September 30, 1863. Five Negro women worked under the direction of the Sisters.

"These women may be said to be the pioneers or forerunners of the U.S. Navy Nurse Corps, as they were the first women nurses carried on board a U.S. Navy hospital ship."

Muster rolls of Red Rover show that nurses—men and women, Sister and lay—were paid 50c a day. The rate for Army nurses was 40c.

The Negro nurses were Ellen Kennedy and Sarah Kinno; Alice Campbell, Betsy Young and Dennis Downs. Research may some day reveal how these associates of the Holy Cross Sisters were recruited.

The main ward of the USS RED ROVER provided accommodations for more than 200 patients. The hospital ship had bathrooms, an elevator, an icebox holding 300 tons. Gauze blinds at the windows kept out cinders and smoke.

Navy Log: '63-'65
Welching anchor December 29, 1862, Admiral Porter aboard the flag ship Black Hawk headed the Mississippi Squadron southward. Fleet Surgeon Ninian A. Pinkney gave orders about the health of the men from his headquarters on the Red Rover. The marine guards aboard the tinclad Rattler were Jacksonville men, half of Company D, 101st Illinois Infantry Regiment, under First Lieutenant Ferdinand A. Dimm. The other half of Company D were aboard the Cricket.

After the fall of Fort Hindman, two Confederate shells shot through Red Rover into the hospital section, but there were no casualties. The ship hovered near the mouths of the White river and the Yazoo river to receive the wounded and to deliver supplies. "Firing from the vicinity of Vicksburg was often within earshot."

"From her station at the mouth of the Yazoo," the ship's history relates, Red Rover "often ran thirty miles up the river to procure eggs, chicken and such from Harrison's plantation. These fresh provisions were for the use of the hospital department."

"Her crew kept busy with many duties. They packed fresh beef in ice, built cattle corrals on shore for the live stock eventually destined for meat supply; buried the dead; took on board stores and provisions; and off-loaded to ships of the Squadron, medical supplies, provisions and stores."

Less than a month after the fall of Vicksburg, July 4, 1863, Red Rover headed for the Jefferson plantation to obtain provisions. She continued southward to Natchez, Baton Rouge and New Orleans, shuttling back and forth to shore hospitals.

Space at the shore hospitals was at a premium, and General Grant ordered that the former Commercial hotel in Memphis be converted into a Navy hospital. This new facility was named the Pinkney Naval Hospital in honor of Fleet Surgeon Pinkney, "the tireless man of mercy," to use the historian's words. At the end of September, 1863, Sister St. John was transferred from Red Rover to head the nursing staff of the new hospital.

By spring, 1864 the Mississippi Squadron had increased to 100 ships with crews totaling 5,800 men, a major achievement of the War. The hospital staff of Red Rover—surgeons, nurses and their assistants—counted 40 at its peak. The number about equalled that of the crew.

Red Rover made her last medical supply voyage in the fall of 1864. December 11 she docked at Mound City in time to prepare for the third and last Christmas aboard. Mound City was her location until the end of her career a year later.

November 17, 1865, seven months after the close of the War, Red Rover's last remaining patients were transferred to the Grampian. The Navy historian presumes that Sister Veronica and Sister Adela served their charges through the very last day.

The Navy's first hospital ship was sold at public auction. During her career as a floating hospital, Red Rover had admitted 2,500 patients from the North, the South and the West, and from foreign countries.

"Floating Palace"
Red Rover's career before Christmas eve, 1862 was brief. The sidewheel wooden steamer was built for river traffic in 1859 and late in 1861 was purchased by the Confederacy as a barracks ship for the New Orleans. Abandoned in the action off Island No. 10, she was picked up by the Mound City under the command of Captain Augustus H. Kilty and was taken to St. Louis for conversion into a floating summer hospital.

What the finished "floating palace" was like is eloquently reported by Army Quartermaster George W. Wise:

"I wish you could see our hospital boat, the Red Rover, with all her comforts for the sick and disabled seamen. She is decidedly the most complete thing of the kind that ever floated and is in every way a decided success. The Western Sanitary Commission gave us in cost of articles $3,500."

"The ice box of the steamer holds 300 tons. She has bath-rooms, laundry, elevator for the sick from the lower to upper deck, amputating room, nine different water closets, gauze blinds to the windows to keep the cinders and smoke from annoying the sick, two separate kitchens for sick and well, a regular corps of nurses."

The nurses, of course, were all men—convalescent seamen, soldiers detailed from the shore hospitals and attendants.

Surgeon George H. Bixby of Boston, appointed at this time, remained the ship's senior medical officer for more than four years. Hardly had the new hospital ship made its appearance, when Mother Angela volunteered her Sister-nurses. The commander of the Western flotilla wrote to the Honorable Gideon Welles, Secretary of the Navy, on June 20:

"Sister Angela, superior of the Sisters of the Holy Cross (some of whom are performing their duties of mercy at the Mound City hospital), has kindly offered the services of the Sisters for the hospital boat of this Squadron when needed. I have written to Commander A. M. Pennock to make arrangements for their coming."

Six months elapsed before "their coming," according to military records thus far investigated.

The Sisters' Archives produce other evidence. Commander Pennock, in a communication to Mother Angela dated Oct. 14, 1862, mentions a letter from Mother Angela directed to the Sisters of the Holy Cross aboard Red Rover.

Sister Athanasius O'Neill speaks of spending six weeks on the hospital ship before her transfer in October 1862 to St. Aloysius Hospital, Washington, D. C.

Red Rover's first major mission of mercy that first summer was to transport to the Mound City hospital the casualties of the Fort St. Charles battle and the scalped victims of the exploded battleship the Mound City. The tragic story of the Union Captain Kilty, the Confederate Colonel Fry and Sister Josephine Reilly was told in The JOURNAL COURIER of Aug. 21, 1862.

Taken from the Confederates at Island No. 10, Red Rover was a prize of war. The U. S. Navy formally purchased her from the Illinois Prize Court at the end of September. October 1, the Western Flotilla legally became the Mississippi Squadron, and all vessels, officers and crew passed from the control of the War Department to the Navy Department.

Mother Angela Gillespie
Mother Angela is the mother of the Navy Nurse Corps. This rather startling claim is made by a retired Navy chaplain in an article, "The Navy Nurses' Hundredth Birthday," which appeared in COLUMBIA Magazine, October 1962.

Father Patrick R. Duffy, C.S.C., maintains that, although Congress did not establish the Navy Nurse Corps until 1908, "the idea and the authority were Mother Angela's."

The authority to volunteer nurses was Mother Angela's as American provincial of the Sisters of the Holy Cross and as founder and administrator of Holy Cross nursing.

The idea that qualified women could and should share with surgeons responsibility for disabled and dying men was, in part, the outcome of her experience in educating girls. The gifted teacher was alert to Florence Nightingale's methods and successes.

With a fine historical sense, Mother Angela saw the War between the States as a major crisis, and she was keenly aware of the swift changes in women's role taking place before her eyes. The astute executive wanted her fellow Sisters to have a share in shaping these changes.

Eliza Gillespie had been an experienced "nurse" practitioner in her hometown, Lancaster, Ohio, where she associated herself for several years with her physician uncle. Later, as teacher at Saint Mary's, Maryland, she made the sick of the area her special responsibility.

The nurse-educator "qualified" her Sister-nurses chiefly by working with them and then putting them under the immediate supervision and care of the surgeons, fortunately all outstanding men.

In the preparation of Sister-nurses, the American provincial had certain advantages over New York's Dr. Elizabeth Blackwell and Superintendent Dorotha Dix, official head of Army nurses. The Holy Cross Sisters were already organized and disciplined. In the West, surgeons were enthusiastic about nurse as nurses.

Fleet Surgeon Ninian A. Pinkney wrote to the chief nurse at the Pinkney Naval Hospital, Memphis, June 9, 1865, shortly after the War was over:

"My dear Sister St. John,—Will you do me the favor to forward to Mother Angela with the best regards of Fleet Surgeon Pinkney the enclosed emblem (a gold cross), as an evidence of my high appreciation of one who has the honor to represent as its head the noblest of the good ones of the earth."

"I expect to arrive in Memphis about the 18th. The hospital, I think, will be kept in motion a little longer, and the Red Rover put out of commission."

Women Aboard Ship
Holy Cross Sisters were not the first Sister-nurses to serve aboard ship, nor were they the first women to serve there.

When the Chicago Sanitary Commission through Mary Livermore and Dr. Laurence Aigner chartered five steamers and equipped them as hospital boats, they fully expected that the mercy ships would be staffed by male nurses.

Unexpectedly, however, "Mother" Mary Ann Bickerdyke turned up in charge of the City of Memphis, as this largest and most luxurious of the Sanitary steamers waited for the casualties of Fort Donaldson. "Mother" Bickerdyke with Mary Safford of Cairo made five trips with the wounded to shore hospitals at Louisville, Mound City, Cairo and St. Louis.

After Shiloh, the rivers were black with craft of every sort, carrying the disabled to shelter and care. Women were ministering everywhere.

The Super'or had been fitted out by the people of Cincinnati as a hospital boat for the Sisters of Mercy. These Sisters of Mercy, from Old Kinsale in Dublin, were an immediate link with the Crimean War. They had been trained by Mother Francis Bridgman from Seattle. The Sisters of Mercy from Chicago staffed the hospital department of the Empress, at the request of Mr. Yatenman of the Western Sanitary Commission.

Sister Anthony O'Connell and her fellow Sisters, black cap Sisters of Charity of Cincinnati, made the journey back and forth to Shiloh on rafts.

In the East, the famed Transport Service operated with many women aboard the hospital boats. Female nurses everywhere proved themselves both expendable and indispensable, but the Sisters aboard the Red Rover seem to be singled out by the long memory and the protecting arm of the U. S. Navy.

The Expedition to Vicksburg — It appears from the late papers that after all the expedition for opening up the Mississippi, known as "the catfish oil expedition," is to be commanded by Gen. Sherman. The Journal of yesterday states that Gen. McClernand this week received orders to report to Gen. Grant, for service under that gallant officer.

John N. Kaiser, proprietor of the new model drug store on the west side of the square, is prepared to furnish pure medicines to any who may chance to suffer from too free indulgence in the good things of the season.

A fashionable Hop came off at Strawn's Hall on Christmas night. From the Jacksonville Journal: "The 101st Regiment Captured — Just as we were going to press we learned of the capture of the Morgan County Regiment at Holly Springs, by a rebel force of 3,000 strong, under Van Dorn. We are not able to give the names of the companies taken, or the loss they sustained. The men were all paroled."

Capt. John R. Duncan of the 2nd Illinois Regiment, who, it will be remembered, lost a leg at Hatchie in October, has returned home to this county. The worthy Captain was in town last week looking quite well and in fine spirits.

Promoted — Lieut. William D. Green, of this place, who has been for some time past Aid de Camp to Gen. Steele in Arkansas, has been promoted to the position of Assistant Adjutant General on the Staff of Gen. Steele. We are happy to hear of Lieut. Green's good fortune, and doubt not he will worthily and gallantly bear himself in any position to which he may be assigned.

HUMORS of the day
What do sailors do with all the knots a ship makes in a day? The most tender-hearted man we ever heard of was a shoe-maker, who always shut his eyes and whistled when he ran his awl through a sole.

He who said that the half is often better than the whole, might have added that none at all is often better than the half.

"I say, Bill, Jim's caged for stealing a horse!"
"Serve him right. Why didn't he buy one and not pay for it, like any other gentleman?"

"Bir, I will make you feel the arrows of my resentment."
"Ah, Miss, why should I fear your arrows when you never had a heart?"

There are two kinds of cats—one with nine lives, the other with nine tails; the former always falls upon their own feet, the latter upon other's backs.

"Say Caesar Augustus, why am your legs like an organ-grinder?"
"Don't know, Mr. Sugarloaf; why is they?" "Cause they carry a monkey about the streets."

Justice Douglas Blasts CIA, Press, Schools, Business

CHICAGO (AP) — Associate Justice William O. Douglas of the U.S. Supreme Court on Friday accused government, press, schools and business of developing conbeen undermined by censorship, secrecy and promotion.

"We have become the new conservatives, who, unlike the old,

practice intolerance," Douglas said. The press has failed to inform the public, he charged, and the government has kept secrets.

In Washington, the Central Inelligence Agency and the Defense

Department, specifically accused by Douglas, made no comment.

Douglas accused the Central Inelligence Agency of intrigue in Middle East politics.

"The manner in which it — the CIA — intercedes in foreign elections with its money bags is never reported," Douglas said.

"The reasons why it supports feudal regimes, the result of its policies, the dangers that it generates are not known even to many of the informed press," he said.

"Why should the CIA efforts to influence elections abroad be a secret to the American people when they are notorious in the foreign nation?" he asked.

Douglas' remarks were published on the eve of Bill of Rights

Day in a 48-page booklet, "Predom of Man," issued by the American Library Association and the Public Affairs Committee,

Inc., of New York. The 60-cent booklet was third in a series on reading for an age of change.

His essay noted what he called

"a trend to conformity" which, he said, has fostered violation of constitutional rights of Americans

by many interests for their own ends or prejudices.

The scientific revolution, in which technology is "a dubious synonym for progress," he said, is concentrating power in the hands of those who control science, "and one who traces the controls back to origins often finds the Pentagon in a central position."

The press, he said, does not cover adequately operations of the Pentagon, "nor can it report

truthfully on the CIA."

In broadening its reach, Douglas said, the press has sought

"the lowest common denominator."

"The tendency is to skip the controversial or touch it only lightly. As a result, the public communication system since

World War II has not filled its traditional role of informing and educating," he said.

"The increasing complexity of modern life also causes a proliferation of news that makes it difficult for any publication to keep abreast," he said.

"The actual forces at work in any one foreign nation, say in Indonesia, require reporting in depth that very few publications

can afford."

The public, he said, is not permitted to learn the facts about many commercial products which are advertised and sold in mass,

and "some are dangerous to health."

He declared the facts about in-secticides are never disclosed to the public and added: "The chemical companies are formidable forces; they not only have powerful political alliances, they help educate the entomologists who in turn become their spokesmen and defenders. They have corrupted some educational institutions in the manner that lumber companies have corrupted some forestry schools."

"This was the climate in which

most of the press prospered since

World War II," Douglas said.

"They stayed quiet on issues that would disturb advertisers. They prospered by spreading alarms about Communists at home and abroad. Their editorial pages were cudgels against officeholders or candidates who had a different view. They used their pressures against nonconformists in schools, colleges and universities."

Douglas said there are exceptions among the press in some cities: "Atlanta, Boston, Denver,

Little Rock, Louisville, Memphis,

New York City, Providence, Sacramento, St. Louis and Washington, D.C. — newspapers that take on controversial issues and are never cowed no matter how prominent and influential the opposition."

Christmas in the United States is a blend of Christian, pagan, seasonal and national traditions.

NO-CONFIDENCE: National Civic Union Party Presidential candidate Dr. Viriato Fiallo, appears to be getting a vote of no-confidence from this squalling youngster while standing in line at a polling place in Santo Domingo, Dominican Republic. Dominicans turned out in large numbers for their first free elections in nearly 40 years.

Two students were hospitalized at Our Saviour's with injuries sustained in an accident Friday night at Orleans shortly before 10 o'clock. Their car, a 1958 Ford, failed to make the slight jog in Routes 38-54 at Orleans and skidded into a telephone pole and overturned.

Injured were: Robert W. Heidman, 20, of Flushing, N. Y., and David Muccini of Boston. Heidman suffered a serious back injury; Muccini was shaken up and sustained multiple abrasions. A third occupant of the car, Edward J. Zwerling, 19, of New York City, escaped unhurt.

The auto was following another car enroute from Doan College in Crete, Nebraska, to the New York City area for Christmas vacation. The first auto passed a truck without incident; the second tried, driven by Heidman, but skidded on the pavement getting back into the eastbound lane of traffic. The auto crashed into a pole on the north side of the road.

State troopers investigated at the scene of the accident. The auto was towed from the scene by wrecker.

TURKISH TO BURLEY
LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) — The year 1913 was a bright one for burley tobacco farmers. It was then that the first cigarettes containing a substantial amount of burley were marketed and promoted heavily. Before that time, most cigarettes were made almost entirely of aromatic leaf, the "Turkish" type.
